TURKS REJECT TERMS LAID DOWN BY ALLIES

BENTLEY'S NAME ORDERED ON BALLOT AS DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Case to be Argued Before Supreme Court on October 5 With Decision to Come Five Days Later; Provisions of Primary Law Unfair Claims the Attorney for Democrats

MADISON, Wis.—The Wisconsin supreme court Monday issued an alternative writ of mandamus ordering Elmer S. Hall, secretary of state, to place the name of A. A. Bentley, mayor of La Crosse, in the democratic column as democratic candidate for governor at the November general election, and the name of John M. Callahan as democratic candidate for congress, or show cause why their names should not be certified as party candidates.

Arguments on the writ, which will test constitutionality of the provisions of the primary law requiring that office-seekers in the primary poll ten per cent of the vote cast for their party candidate for governor in the last election, before their names can go on the official general election ballot, were set by the court for October 5 at 10 a. m.

The supreme court in its order to the secretary of state says that "we, willing that speedy justice shall be done in behalf of the petitioners do command and enjoin you that immediately after receipt of this writ you do certify that the relator, A. A. Bentley, have his name placed in the democratic column as the democratic candidate for governor on the official ballot for the impending general election, and do further certify that the relator John M. Callahan, have his name placed in the democratic column as a democratic candidate for congressman or that you show cause to the contrary before the court on October 5 at 10 a. m."

Decision October 10

The names of Bentley and Callahan were included in the writ as participants in the test cases to determine whether the remaining party candidates shall go on the general election ballot. It remains for the secretary of state either to place the names of the candidates on the ballot or show cause October 5 why they should not be placed under a party label.

Decision of the court on the matter would then be made October 10, the next decision day.

Attorney General William J. Morgan will contest the action for secretary of State Hall, defending the state law, which the democrats claim to be in violation of the constitution.

Law Unfair Says Riley

Miles C. Riley, representing the democrats, contends that the ten per cent provision of the primary law is an unjust and unreasonable discrimination against the democratic party, which in Wisconsin acts as a buffer for republican factional reactions.

He argues that by using the vote for governor as the basis for determining the average strength the state law places its dependence on a very unstable foundation which fluctuates according to the recations within the republican party.

MOTOR BOAT RACES SUNDAY AFTERNOON DRAW LARGE CROWD

"Erky" Mueller, With Hydroplane, "Dewskimmer III" Wins in Races

MORE RACES PLANNED BY MOTOR BOAT ENTHUSIASTS

Next Meet Would be Regatta for all Craft

"ERKY" Mueller in his hydroplane, "Dewskimmer III", won first place in the challenge motorboat race Sunday afternoon on the Mississippi river in front of Riverside park. The race was fast and interesting and a good sized crowd of people was out to witness it, despite the rival attraction of the city series baseball game at Copeland park.

Elmer Lang, with his 110 h. p. displacement racing launch "Sliver III" came in 150 feet behind the hydroplane, while Art Lang, in his boat, "Nemo 1," trailed in a quarter of a mile behind the winner.

The three boats got away to a flying start from the wagon bridge, and battled closely to the Milwaukee railroad bridge. The course led around the center pier of the railroad bridge and back to the wagon bridge. Both of the leading boats made good turns at the upper bridge, and the race to the finish was nip and tuck, with the hydroplane setting the pace. Mueller won by 150 feet. The time for the course was 8 minutes, 19 seconds. The distance between the bridges is 2.1 miles.

Encouraged by the interest of the public in the races Sunday, the motorboat enthusiasts are planning a full sized regatta for the next racing program. Mr. Mueller is already working on the plans for the next meet, which will be held this fall if the present good weather hold out until after the city series is decided. The next meet would include canoe races, Evinrude races, and races for all classes of motorboats.

SHOOTING OCCURS IN GRAND CROSSING FEUD SUNDAY NIGHT

Strikers Attempt Kidnapping of Two Workmen Returning to Their Homes

SHOTS FIRED WHEN MEN ESCAPE FROM AUTOMOBILE

Workmen Claim Shots Were Fired at Round House

AN OUTBURST between pickets and laborers in which several shots were fired occurred near the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad yards at Grand Crossing Sunday night about 8 o'clock. No fatalities or injuries as a result of the shooting have been reported.

According to details of the incident investigated by Chief of Police John B. Webber, the disturbance grew out of the attempted kidnapping in an automobile by strikers of two railroad laborers as they were returning to their homes from work. That a man by the name of Jess White was the driver of the auto, was the statement made to Chief Webber by Edward Boehm, watchman at the yards. Names of other parties involved on either side were not learned by the police.

Workmen Escape

The two men whom strikers attempted to kidnap, Chief Webber stated, had left the shops and were walking toward the car line when they were attacked by several men driving up in an automobile. One of the two succeeded in making his escape, while the second was pulled into the automobile, but finally jumped from the machine and escaped. Both of the railroad workmen, in telling their story to the chief of police later, said that shots were fired when they made their get-away.

That several shots had also been fired point-blank at the round house earlier in the evening, was the statement of workmen to the chief of police. Pickets claimed that the shots came from the other side, according to Chief Webber.

No Action on Complaint

Complaint of a strike-breaker deliberately firing into the midst of a number of pickets about mid-night Saturday, has been made to the police department but as yet nothing has been done, it was learned today. Action in the case was to have been brought against the party responsible by the district attorney.

In discussing the matter today, F. H. Hartwell, attorney for the trades and labor council stated: "We are getting tired of disturbances stirred up by strike-breakers merely for the purpose of exciting public opinion." It is the contention of strikers that all the shooting and disturbances have been caused by the strike-breakers.

RELATIVES START ACTION TO BREAK STEEL MAN'S WILL

Claim Secretary Induced Him to Marry Her by Catering to His Love for Economy

CHICAGO, Ill.—Unusual allegations were made in the suit of relatives of the late Samuel Eugene Bliss, steel mill owner, who are seeking to break his will by which his second wife, who was his stenographer when he married her, was left his estate of approximately $2,000,000. Bliss was 72 years old when he married his stenographer-secretary, who was 44.

That the stenographer catered to his love for economy by "pinch penny" habits and spent a penny when he spent a nickel, was one of the allegations made by the contestants, Albert Bliss, a brother, and Ernest Bliss, a nephew.

She also encouraged him in his hallucination that from heaven he could direct the further increase of his fortune, the petitioners charged.

A kitchenette was established in Bliss' office and, the petitioners allege, the stenographer cooked his meals.

By these and other means of catering to his wants and vanities, it is alleged, the stenographer, after fourteen years became Bliss' wife following the death of his first wife, who had been an invalid, it is charged in the suit.

U. S. MUST AID IN CURING WORLD ILLS DECLARES GERMAN

BERLIN. — By The Associated Press.—The healing of Europe's ills is possible only through the aid of America, but she will not help so long as she is convinced that Germany, as well as Russia and Austria "is infected with the intellectual malady of socialism," says a statement by Dr. Carl F. Von Siemens. Dr. Von Siemens is an industrial magnate, a democratic member of the Reichstag and a member of the imperial economy council.

WORLD FINANCE CONFERENCE IS PLAN OF ALLIES

BRUSSELS.—By the Associated Press.—An international conference to consider reparations, inter-allied debts and a loan to Germany will probably be called for early in December, it is learned.

The Belgian government, while it has not yet been asked by the allies to issue invitations, regards the summoning of such a meeting as certain.

The December date was proposed so as to await the result of the Anglo-American negotiations for debt funding and to afford time in which to induce the United States to participate.

UNIONS TO PROVIDE BAIL FOR MEN HELD IN HERRIN INQUIRY

Thirty-six of Men Indicted to be Allowed Freedom on Bond

MARION, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Thirty-six of the forty-four indicted for murder in connection with the Herrin mine killings will be given liberty on bond Monday, it was announced. The remaining eight will not be allowed bond, because of alleged compelling evidence against them, it was added. Should motions to dismiss the indictments be made, they will not be granted, it was learned.

Six will be allowed freedom on $20,000 bail, ten on $10,000, and twenty on $5,000, it was stated. The amount and character of the alleged evidence regulated the fixing of the amounts, it was said.

The miners' union is said to be prepared to furnish the bonds. A committee of miners headed by Mayor Pace of Herrin, where the 22 killings occurred, has been soliciting business men in this section for assistance, and sufficient pledges are said to have been obtained to cover the amounts demanded in the bonds.

Six of those to be denied bail are among the thirty in custody while the other two have not been apprehended as yet.

DAILY LEAGUE TO MEET ON TUESDAY IN MILWAUKEE

Business of Importance to Come Before the Annual Session

OSHKOSH, Wis.—The annual meeting of the Wisconsin League of Newspapers will be held at Milwaukee Tuesday morning, sessions beginning at 10 o'clock at the Republican house. There will be election of officers and the transaction of considerable business of importance.

The league is composed of about thirty of the largest and most influential daily newspapers of the state, outside of Milwaukee, and its field of influence reaches to all corners of the state. Recently a Milwaukee office was established in the Enterprise building in charge of William McColgan, who is experienced in newspaper promotion work. This office was opened for the purpose of developing foreign advertising for the papers in the league, the purpose being to sell Wisconsin to the larger advertisers of the country since the Badger state is considered one of the best in the union for that class of advertising.

At the annual meeting Tuesday short talks will be given by F. R. Starbuck of the Racine Journal, J. Sturtevant of the Wausau Record-Herald, J. M. Hibbard of the Stoughton Hub, and J. H. Webb of the Puhl-Webb Coffee company, Chicago. The present officers are: President, O. J. Hardy, Oshkosh; vice president, J. M. Hibbard, Stoughton; secretary, H. H. Bliss, Janesville.

LAKE SAILORS QUIT IN ANTICIPATION OF SATURDAY STRIKE

CLEVELAND, O.—By The Associated Press.—More than twenty-five sailors quit Lake Carriers' association boats here Monday morning so as not to be caught at the head of the Great Lakes when the lake seamen's strike goes into effect Saturday midnight, according to E. J. Sullivan, local business agent for the sailors' union here.

George A. Marr, secretary of the Lake Carriers' association here, denied that any considerable number of men had quit the association's boats here today. Mr. Marr said that they had the usual Monday shortage of men due to Sunday lay-overs but that all places had been filled.

NORTHWESTERN COEDS BAR DATES ON THREE NIGHTS OF THE WEEK

CHICAGO, Ill.—Northwestern university co-eds have agreed to have no social engagements with university men Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays during the coming year, according to an announcement by Miss Helen Badenoch, president of the Women's Self-Government association, at the institution.

"This pledge is taken because we girls believe too many dates interfere with a college man's athletics, and the school will suffer if the athletes do not have the proper time for training," explained Miss Badenoch.

LABOR CONDITIONS IN U. S. REPORTED GREATLY IMPROVED

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Employment conditions improved materially in thirty out of forty-two important industries of the country during the month of August, as compared with July, the department of labor announced Monday. The largest increases in employment appeared in stamped ware and fertilizer industries and printing newspapers, the report said.

Decreased employment occurred in those industries manufacturing tobacco products and men's clothing, and in car building and repair shops.

Thirty-three of the forty-two industries canvassed by government investigators indicated increases in the total amount of their payrolls for the month while nine industries registered decreases.

RAIL INJUNCTION ASKED BY U. S. IN EFFECT ON MONDAY

Labor to Petition Court of Appeals for Review of Wilkerson Order

HEARING ON WAGE PETITION OF SIGNAL MEN OPENS TODAY

Strike Vote Held in Abeyance Pending Hearing

CHICAGO, Ill.—The drastic temporary injunction order asked by Attorney General Daugherty against shop crafts strike leaders, was put in force Monday by Judge Wilkerson without any of its effectiveness being modified.

Several slight changes in the wording of the order submitted Saturday were made by Judge Wilkerson to clarify its meaning.

Labor to Ask Review

Donald R. Richberg, consul for the railway shopcrafts, indicated Monday that the next step in the shopmen's fight against the Daugherty injunction would be a petition to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for a review of Judge Wilkerson's order.

Mr. Richberg indicated that his arguments on the formal entry of the order would be only a perfunctory protest against the injunction.

To combat Attorney General Daugherty's efforts to have the temporary writ made permanent means a long, costly fight, Mr. Richberg said, a fight which would severely tax the resources of the unions.

"What we are most interested in now," he said, "is an effort to obtain a review of this case by the circuit court of appeals."

Open Wage Hearing

Judge Wilkerson's court and the United States railroad labor board shared in the interest of the railway world Monday with the opening of hearings on the petition of 15,000 signal men for an increase in wages.

The signal men's wages were cut July 1 in a decision handed down by the board at the time it slashed the pay of the shopmen but the signal men did not join the July 1 walkout with the shopcrafts. Their strike vote was held in abeyance when they were granted the rehearing.

The July 1 cut in the signal men's wages ranged from 5 to 7 cents an hour. Forty-two railroads and their subsidiaries are parties to the rehearing.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Coroner McGregor Monday announced the inquest to fix responsibility for the collapse of the Strand theater foyer last week will be held October 3. The jury will be composed of newspapermen.

A jury of journalists investigated the fatal bund-house fire in the Pennsylvania railroad shops a month ago and rendered an impressive verdict, the coroner said.

Eight-year-old Madaline Kunkle, an orphan, who was killed in the collapse was buried yesterday. Two of the 57 little ones who were injured still are in a critical condition. They sustained fractured skulls. Many of the victims returned to school this morning.

RESCUED FROM WRECK OF AUTO OWNER SUICIDES

STERLING, Ill.—Crawling back to the wreckage of his automobile from which he had been rescued by two companions after he had driven the machine into a culvert west of Sterling, late Saturday night, William Traeder, 47, unmarried, expert automobile mechanic, searched among the debris until he found an old revolver he had carried with his tools, and with the remark "The old wreck isn't worth $2," he placed the weapon to his right temple and blew out his brains. None of the occupants of the car was badly hurt in the accident.

REFUSE TO ATTEND PEACE PARLEY UNDER CONDITIONS OUTLINED IN INVITATION

Proposals Give Allies Chance to Strengthen Positions in Case Conference Fails, Says Angora Government Official, While Turks Would be Hampered by Terms; Ask Participation of Russia and Bulgaria

GENEVA.—By the Associated Press.—The Earl of Balfour told the assembly of the league of nations Monday that massacre of the Greek and Armenian refugees in Smyrna is impending. He said Great Britain was ready to give 5,000 pounds to a relief fund and he appealed to the other countries to contribute.

Prince Dowleh of Persia offered to give all the help he could in promoting the relief work and to serve as mediator if necessary.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—By the Associated Press.—Hamid Bey, representative of the Angora government in Constantinople, declared Monday the allied invitation to the peace conference could not be accepted by the Turkish nationalists on the terms laid down.

"We cannot accept the allied terms because they propose to de-militarize the Sea of Marmora and part of Thrace which would prevent us from bringing our troops from Asia to Europe," said Hamid in a statement to the correspondent. "Neither can we accept literally the condition that our army shall not advance while the peace conference is progressing.

This would so circumscribe our movements that the enemy would have ample opportunity to prepare forces for a fresh attack and would give the allies a chance to complete their land and naval reinforcements in the event the conference failed.

"Regarding the straits, we have already admitted freedom for the passage of all vessels through them, but we are not prepared to define in what authority or body the control shall be vested. That question must be settled at a conference between the Turks and the allies.

"We also insist that all nations having commercial, military or other interests in the Dardanelles, including Russia and Bulgaria, shall participate in the conference.

"We further insist that Great Britain shall suspend all naval and military movements in the straits during the course of the conference."

Turks Retire

LONDON.—The cabinet Monday considered the far east situation with all the ministers, Admiral Earl Beatty, the Earl of Cavan and other military and naval personages in attendance. Premier Lloyd George heartily congratulated Lord Curzon on the result of his mission to Paris, which was regarded in official quarters as eminently satisfactory.

The incident of the invasion of the neutral zone at Chanak, when Turkish cavalry which entered the Zone Saturday night retired Sunday after a meeting between the commanders of the Turkish and British forces, was looked upon as indicating there need be no fear of the repetition of such incidents.

Turks Don't Want War

A Reuter dispatch from Constantinople says the meeting between General Shuttleworth and the Turkish commander was of the friendliest nature, the Turkish officer in agreeing to withdraw his cavalry behind the neutral line, declaring the Kemalists did not wish to go to war with the British empire.

Enthusiasm for the Paris Near Eastern settlement is lacking in the press comment Monday morning, the tenor of most of the editorials being that it was the only way to avoid war and maintain agreement among the allies and therefore, had to be adopted.

In some instances the preservation of the allied unity is held to be the most important aspect of the settlement and the question of the concessions to the Turks is not emphasized.

Greece Won't Give Up Thrace

ATHENS. — By The Associated Press.—Hurried to greater effort by the popular clamor for its resignation, the cabinet of Premier Triantafillakos is developing unexpected cohesion in strength and may even live out the present national crisis.

Meanwhile a note from the allied powers disclosing their communication to Mustapha Kemal Pasha, acceding to his conditions for peace, has reached the foreign office and has had the effect on the Grecian people of a frigid and undesired shower-bath. The powers in their communication merely informed the Greek government of their action.

Greece is not looking for more trouble, said one official, but she intends to go right on with the task of building up her army in Thrace. In Thrace, Greece is, and in Thrace Greece will remain, is the watch word of the Greek people.

U. S. to Care for Refugees

LONDON.— A Reuter dispatch from Athens says that Admiral Bristol has informed the Greek government that the United States will undertake to protect with destroyers the removal of the remaining 150,000 refugees from Smyrna if Greece provides the means of transport.

The Americans further undertake to provide shelter and sustenance for the refugees, and they fix a limit of one week for their embarkation.

The Greek government has grate-

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

ACTION AGAINST MILK MARKETING POOL NOT ATTACK ON "CO-OPS"

Discrimination in Favor of Farmers in the Organization Charged by State

MADISON, Wis.—The action of the Wisconsin department of markets against the Milk Producers' Co-operative Marketing company is not to be considered as an attack on farmers' associations, but rather represents a case of farmers outside the organization charging discrimination against farmers within the organization, Edward Nordman, commissioner of markets, said in a statement issued by his department Monday.

"The action is not 'soaking the farmer,' as one editorial remarks, nor is it a blow at farmers' organizations," Mr. Nordman declared. "It simply raises the question whether one farmers' company has the right to enforce a demand that all producers who do not want to join its particular organization shall be penalized.

"The issue is whether a farmer has the right to exercise an independent judgment as to whether he will join this Chicago concern or whether he shall be compelled to unite with it or go out of the milk producing business. Some farmers may have doubts as to the economic principles which this company advocates. Others may be reluctant to associate with it because the company has never been licensed to do business in Wisconsin and has, therefore, no standing in the state.

"Whatever the reason for a man not wanting to join this Illinois corporation, it would seem that the state ought to at least raise the question as to whether the non-member producers, even though they are a decided minority, must be subjected to this pressure to join the Chicago company or else stop being milk farmers.

"The hearing on October 2 is to determine whether the company's acts are justified or whether it should be ordered to stop them. It may be that the organization has a perfect legal right to do what it is doing and in that case no order will be issued.

"It ought to be unnecessary to say that this department has no right to discriminate between different interests in the official proceedings which it brings. Where a case seems to represent a fitting cause of action, it is our obligation to begin an action whether the matter involves farmers, tobacco buyers or gasoline distributors."

PHONE COMPANIES ASK HIGHER RATES; BLAME SLEET STORM

MADISON, Wis.—Echoes of the severe sleet storm that swept Wisconsin last winter are still heard by the state railroad commission. The reverberations come in the form of telephone company applications for increased rates.

This week the Mattison and Manawa telephone companies, the Eden Telephone company and the New Liston Telephone company, all are applying for rate raises and have hearings scheduled before the commission. All of these concerns were affected by the storm from which some of them are just recovering.

The commission on September 25 will hear the application of the People's Gas company of Marshfield for increased rates and on September 26 the application of the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company to issue $585,000 of bonds.

Why Pretty Teeth

Are shown everywhere today

Look about you. Note how many teeth now glisten. Note how people show them as they never did before.

Millions of people are brushing teeth in a new way. If you don't know the good results, make this free test.

Fight dingy film

One object is to fight the film on teeth — that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people escaped such troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning.

New ways found

Then dental science found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. In that tooth paste are embodied those two great film combatants.

Five effects

But Pepsodent brings five effects. These are very important. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's ever-present tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

Pepsodent also polishes the teeth so film adheres less readily.

You see them now nearly the world over

These glistening teeth are now seen nearly the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations are now using Pepsodent. And those whiter teeth mean safer teeth. They mean a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

This test will be a revelation, amazing but delightful. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

The Merchant Marine

IT may be a general assumption that Wisconsin unconditionally repudiated the ship subsidy idea, or at least, the bill now pending in congress, when it nominated Senator La Follette and his official political associates by an overwhelming majority in the September primary, because in the campaign Senator La Follette stigmatized this bill as a raid on the public in the interest of such organizations as the steel trust. However, there were many issues, and so it is not possible to say that the La Follette majority indicated Wisconsin's position upon any single issue, as that majority might have been attained in spite of a public objection to one or more of this specific La Follette issue.

We are not in a position to discuss the specific merits of the subsidy bill. We do believe, however, that an American merchant marine is of vast importance to this country, and that to no class is it more important in a financial way than to the farmer. To accept the theory of those who say we should let other countries monopolize the marine business because they can do it more cheaply than Americans, is equivalent to saying that we should permit foreign countries to furnish us with almost every manufactured product, because unquestionably, they can do it more cheaply. Were that policy followed throughout, we would have no industrial workers, whose millions of mouths the farmer feeds. The ship subsidy is to American shipping what the tariff is to American manufacture and farming—protection against cheap foreign labor.

The importance of a merchant marine to the farmer resides in the fact that a bumper crop means loss to him, not gain, unless the market is big enough to create a demand for his products. Under present conditions this means that in the neighborhood of 25 per cent of farm products must be sold abroad. He must have access to foreign markets or prices of farm products will decline. At this very moment that is the backbone of his difficulty. And he must have reasonable access to foreign markets in the matter of shipping facilities.

Senator La Follette intimates that a ship subsidy is a raid on the public by which such concerns as the steel trust alone would profit. The La Crosse Tribune is not interested in the steel trust excepting in a general way. It gets no revenue from the steel trust. It is specifically interested in the farmer. Its home is in La Crosse county, which in agricultural wealth ranks high among the counties of the entire United States. It sells its product, a daily paper, to the Wisconsin farmer. It sells advertising to stores, the prosperity of which depends directly upon the prosperity of the Wisconsin farmers. And it is our interest in the Wisconsin farmer, which in some sense is a selfish interest, which bids us to urge farmers everywhere to study the ship subsidy problem as it affects their own welfare.

The value of farm produce in eight states forming the group to which Wisconsin belongs is about $3,000,000,000 a year. This is a product of which the steel trust need not be ashamed. In other words, in the aggregate the farmer is a formidable competitor of any single group in the list known as "big business" when it really comes to the value of productions. The $3,000,000,000 is not a fixed figure. It is the average value of farm produce of these states. With a lively foreign market and good shipping facilities it might be $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000, just as without these facilities it might shrink to $2,000,000,000. In other words, the value of the product is what proceeds the farmer can get for it, and what he can get for it depends upon the amplitude, activity and accessibility of markets.

Of all states, Wisconsin is most interested in the merchant marine. Two inland waterways are thrusting themselves to the interior of the United States. One is the Mississippi river, which is being amplified as an artery to seagoing commerce at the Gulf. The other is the St. Lawrence shipway, which will penetrate to the Great Lakes. On the west the Mississippi follows the Wisconsin boundary. On the east our border is the Great Lakes. With these two projects completed, Wisconsin will practically have tidewater on both sides. Its Mississippi and Lake ports will to all intents and purposes be sea ports. Wisconsin cheese, meats and potatoes can be loaded at Green Bay and Milwaukee for London and Hong Kong. Therefore as a business man the Wisconsin farmer cannot afford to neglect thoroughgoing study of the merchant marine problem.

It is our conviction that the ship subsidy is not the right method. We believe that the government should own and operate the merchant marine, just as we believed with Senator La Follette, that Secretary McAdoo was right when he opposed the return of the railroads to private ownership. But this thing is impossible. Probably Wisconsin is one of not more than three states in the United States that would vote for public ownership of these facilities. We know, and every farmer knows, that a public ownership measure cannot be put through congress.

This puts up to us, as practical people, the question of what is the best measure that can be gotten through congress. Senator La Follette does not oppose this present bill only. As we understand him, he opposes the whole idea. He has no substitute to offer other than government ownership, which can't be passed. One recalls that years ago a ship subsidy bill was offered. Congress defeated it. Congress said then that the shipping idea was alright, but that it could not be established by a subsidy—it must be established by indirect assistance. Two years later a bill was introduced seeking shipping aid by indirect assistance. It was defeated. Many of the same congressmen arose to say that the shipping idea was alright, but that it could not be put over by indirect assistance—it would have to be done by a subsidy.

We do not assume to disagree with Senator La Follette upon the merits of the present bill. For all we know, there may be a joker in every line. But Wisconsin farmers ought to find some way to acquaint Senator La Follette with the fact that they are interested in an American merchant marine, because they will be among its biggest shippers. Its establishment means billions to the American farmer. They should tell Senator La Follette that if the present bill is wrong he should devise some scheme by which—congress being what it is—the American merchant marine can be built up to a condition of efficiency that will open foreign markets to farmers in America. Unless we do this, we shall have to wait until congress is ready for public ownership. The present generation of farmers will be dead and buried before that time arrives.

Mildred's Wager

Harold Shipway sat on the piano stool before the piano in Mildred Brown's little parlor. Mildred Brown, music teacher, sat beside him on a little, straight chair, watching his fingers intently. Harold looked scowlingly at the music opened before him, then looked hopelessly at his big fingers, moved them awkwardly over the keys and struck, or rather attempted to strike, the opening chord of the new "piece" teacher had given him to study a week before.

"Ouch!" said Mildred, her face registering a sensation of actual physical pain.

Harold took his fingers from the keys and turned toward Mildred.

"Teacher, I'm sorry," he said. "Does it really hurt you when I make mistakes?" He looked intently into the reproachful eyes. "I'm really sorry."

"If you were sorry," said the teacher averting her eyes, "you'd play better. Doesn't it hurt your ears when you play discords?"

"Not in the least," confessed Harold.

Mildred sighed. "I guess you just aren't musical," she said.

"I don't suppose I am. Besides my fingers are big and clumsy."

"I really don't see why you take lessons then. I hate to encourage you——"

Harold again looked a little too intently into the teacher's eyes. "You haven't encouraged me. You haven't said one encouraging thing about the way I play yet. If you want to know why I go on with the music I'll tell you. It's because I am so darned fond of the teacher."

"How absurd!" Mildred said, with eyes still averted; then cautiously raising them: "But you began the lessons before you had even seen me—so you must have wanted to——"

"I suppose it was a case of plain loneliness," sighed Harold. "There's so little to do here in Stapleton. I've been here six months and until I started taking music lessons from you, two months ago, I had never set foot in anybody's house. The movies bore me to extinction. I like golf, but no one has suggested putting me up for the country club. I never saw such an exclusive town as Stapleton——"

"Oh, Stapleton has a heart of ice," Mildred agreed. "I've lived and worked here six years, and I've never been in any one's house except to give lessons. The people think I am socially beneath them because I teach music."

"And they think I am their social inferior because——"

"Because you came here to be manager of the Stapleton Mills without a social introduction, because you are a poor young man without a fortune and without a family name that dares back to the colonial wars. Oh, I know Stapleton. The only time they overlook the fact that a person doesn't come from one of the first families is when he has a million or so."

Harold Shipway listened intently. "Do you really think they are as mercenary as that? I thought perhaps they hadn't taken me up because they hadn't got around to it. I can't believe money counts for so much." Harold folded the music on the music holder before him. "You know I don't care for society or that sort of thing. Only having been brought up in a place where my people knew every one I got used to being made to feel at home. I tell you it's great having people's doors standing open for you, and knowing you'll be welcomed once in a while for dinner." Mr. Shipway sighed. "Now, little teacher, I've said enough about myself. I'm no duffer at music, but I like to hear it. Besides, I'm a little tired."

"But aren't you going to try?" said the teacher, very much surprised to see her hitherto docile pupil rising deliberately from the piano stool where he was supposed to sit for another half hour.

"No, I'm going to sit in this comfortable chair and get you to play something with a good old-fashioned tune to it. Won't you please?"

Mildred Brown answered by drawing the Morris chair nearer the piano and lowering the back to a comfortable angle. Then she lowered the window shades to keep out the late afternoon sun and sat down at the piano. First she played "Home, Sweet Home," and then she played Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" and then a half dozen old favorites that all sounded dimly familiar to Harold Shipway though he couldn't have told you the names of their composers and Mildred didn't trouble him by explaining.

When the clock struck 6 to remind teacher and pupil that the lesson was over, Harold rose to go.

"It's been a little bit of heaven," he said. "I won't bother you to try to teach me any more," he said. "I guess I'm too much of a dub—I——"

"Oh, I don't want you to stop," said Mildred with alarm. "Only I hate to take the money when I'm not teaching you much. But don't let's talk about that—I was just wondering whether—whether you would care to stay and have dinner with Aunt Nellie and me? It's really only supper; still Aunt Nellie would be glad, I know——"

Harold Shipway had followed Mildred to the door. "Of course, I'll stay," so said following he rout of the little parlor down the hall toward the dining room door, but before they reached the door. Harold Shipway drew very close to the little teacher. He laid two hands on her slight arms and for a moment stooped and rested his head wearily on the little shoulder, then he turned and kissed the cheek.

"You shouldn't do that," scolded the teacher, and Harold was prompt in his rather lame apology.

"I am sorry, but I suppose it is because I'm so lonely here in Stapleton. I just couldn't help it."

At 9 Harold Shipway, feeling much less lonely than he felt earlier in the day, was taking his departure. It was as he parted that Mildred offered her wager.

"Really there's no reason why Stapleton shouldn't open its doors to you. I am going to make a wager that within a week you'll have been invited to dinner at one of the big houses—the Loftons or the Holdridges' or the Palmers'—some of the really prominent people."

"I'd rather be invited to the Browns," protested Harold. "But I'll take you up. What shall it be—a five-pound box of chocolates to——"

"An invitation to dinner," suggested Mildred.

So the wager was made.

What Mildred did next day and the next day she excused herself for on the ground that she was doing a kind act to some one who needed it very much. When she went to the Loftons to give little Helene her music lesson she chanced to see Mrs. Lofton. Quite adroitly she spoke about her various pupils, mentioned Mr. Shipway and said: "It's rather odd that any one with the prospects he has should choose to live off here among strangers." Mrs. Lofton was interested. "Prospects?" she queried and Mildred murmured something about a great-uncle worth $1,000,000 who had made Harold his sole heir.

At the Palmers she repeated the same falsehood. It was Mildred's first deliberate lie, but she felt justified. "It will get them interested," she said to herself. "When they know him they'll like him so much they won't care whether he has money or not. And they'll only blame me, and I can say I heard it indirectly—I don't care what they think of me, anyway."

A week later Harold came for his music lesson. He brought with him the box of candy. "I lose," he said. "Stapleton has begun to be friendly. The Loftons asked me to dinner and so did the Palmers. I went to the Loftons, but had to decline the Palmers because their invitation was for tonight, and I told them I had a previous invitation. You will let me stay to supper again, won't you, please?"

"Funny thing is," Harold went on, when they had gone into the little parlor, "that now those people have begun to be friendly I don't seem to care about it. The fact is, I don't intend to stay here much longer. I am very anxious to be married—if I do I shall want to take my bride home with me. She doesn't like Stapleton. If I don't marry—then the farther I am from Stapleton the better."

"How—how interesting?" said poor Mildred. "May I meet her?"

"Foolish little girl," said Harold. "You know her already. You are the only girl I ever wanted to marry—but before I really ask you I must make a confession——"

"I have a confession, too," said Mildred, very much embarrassed.

"I'm Harold Shipway Cavendish. Dad's John Cavendish of the General Oil company. You see—well, bang it all, it will mean that you'll have to marry a man hedged in by a few millions. I took this job incog., because I wanted to prove that I could make good on my own. These people didn't know who I was, of course. Don't bother about your confession—Mildred, will you have me?"

"I guess I haven't anything to confess," said Mildred. And then Harold Shipway Cavendish took the slight little music teacher in his arms and kissed the cheek that he had neglected the week before.

SHELLEY MANUSCRIPT IN A PRIZE BAG

A copy of a rare pamphlet by Shelley was sold the other day at Sotheby's for $6,000. Nothing was said in the sale catalogue of the copy, and that forms one of the little romances of the sale room. It belonged to the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts, and got hidden and unrecognized in a bundle of music and other things in one of the sales last spring of the baroness' literary property. This bundle was knocked down to a London bookseller for less than $5, and was then passed on, apparently without proper examination to another bookseller for about $50. It was this second owner of the bundle who found that he had indeed drawn a prize.

Olive is Ancient Fruit

It is doubtful if there are many fruits that have been known to man longer than the olive. Records show it was cultivated by the Egyptians more than 4,000 years ago, and olives and the olive tree are mentioned often in the Bible and all ancient writings. Asia Minor is supposed to have been the original home of the olive. The trees often reach a great height and a very old age—some of them in parts of southern France being nearly 2,000 years old.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

COAL DISTRIBUTION IN WISCONSIN LEFT TO THE OPERATORS

Outside Interference Will Only Gum Up the Machinery Says Statement

EXPECT FIRST SHIPMENTS OF HARD COAL IN NEAR FUTURE

Price About Same as Last Year, is Prediction

MADISON, Wis.—Leave the distribution of Wisconsin coal to operators and dealers of this state, and the machinery needed to obtain fuel to the Northwest governor's committee and there will be no cause for complaint this winter, the Wisconsin fuel committee says Monday in a statement.

"If the whole coal distribution problem is left in the hands of those whose investments are at stake, that is the operators in Wisconsin, they themselves will see to it that there is a just and equitable distribution of coal as it is received, without setting up any distributing machinery," the committee statement said.

"Outside interference only tends to 'gum up' the machinery it added referring to the effort of certain cities to bring about the establishment of local coal distributing committees. The creation of additional machinery was discouraged last week by Gov. J. J. Blaine in a letter to the Milwaukee Association of Commerce.

In a review of the whole fuel situation as it confronts this state the committee said that "Wisconsin can feel greatly relieved as to the bituminous situation," and declared that an intensive loading program for anthracite has been mapped out to begin this week.

First Shipment Soon

"This would indicate that the state can expect first cargoes of hard coal shortly after October 1, and better still, we are reliably informed that the price will not be in excess of last year," the statement added.

"It seems but fitting to state," the committee said "that Wisconsin is deeply indebted, for the word accomplished by Mr. D. D. Conn, chairman of the Northwest Governors' coal committee ably assisted by J. Morrisey, representing Wisconsn and Mr. Murphy and Mr. Leich, and the untiring efforts of Mr. Reiss of Sheboygan and Mr. Uhrig of Milwaukee in seeing to it that Wisconsin was properly taken care of in its allotments and to those gentlemen only should the credit be given."

Receipts based on clearing since September 15, indicate that there will be moved into the Northwest territory pretty close to 200,000 tons of coal a day, the report said. Assuming that there are 80 days of the shipping season left, it added, the states would receive 16,000,000 tons of coal before navigation closes.

Of this amount 4,502,000 would be apportioned to Lake Michigan ports with about 60 percent or 2,400,000 tons remaining in Wisconsin for home consumption. Of the tonnage going to Lake Superior ports Wisconsin should receive 504,000 tons which with that shipped during the early summer would give the state 4,000,000 tons of soft coal this year.

Shortage Will be Small

The above estimates are said to give no consideration to stocks of bituminous coal on hand at all docks at the opening of navigation which will carry the amount to nearly 5,600,000 tons and comes close to estimated requirements for the state.

The committee reports that it has received advice that between 1,800,000 and 2,000,000 tons of hard coal will be shipped to Wisconsin. It says that it is safe to assume that with what anthracite was carried over and tonnage that will be received, that there will not be much more than a 33 1-3 percent shortage and with careful conservation by all concerned, the actual shortage should be greatly reduced.

"With the appointment of Conrad E. Spens, as federal fuel director and C. P. White assistant to be stationed at St. Paul, the northwest is assured of being well represented throughout the period of regulation and any outside interference only tends to 'gum up' the machinery," the committee said.

Detroit increased its third place margin over Chicago to a game and a half by trimming Boston, 7 to 2, while the White Sox lost to Washington, 5 to 4.

Instant Quaker Oats

Cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes

The Quaker Oats flavor has won millions the world over. This brand dominates wherever oat lovers live, for we flake it from queen grains only.

Now there's a quick-cooking Quaker, made from those same queen grains. It cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. It is the quickest-cooking oats in the world.

The oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And those small thin flakes cook quickly.

Say which you want. In either regular or Instant you get the finest flavor oat flakes ever had. In Instant you get the quickest-cooking oat dish in existence.

There are now those two great reasons for insisting on this brand.

WHIP—IT'S NEEDED IN CONGRESS

WASHINGTON—Discipline in the G. O. P. has gone to the dogs. Republican leaders in congress are looking around for a new Simon Legree who can whip obstreperous congressmen into line.

The trouble is that so many statesmen are back home fixing their political fences and building cyclone cellars for November that party leaders can't get a quoroum in the House.

Even the official whose duty it is to round them up—a party official called the whip—jumped the reservation himself!

When the House reconvened after its recent recess there was no quorum. And even Harold Knutson of Minnesota, the G. O. P. whip, was deliquent.

Immediately there was talk of ousting him and naming a new whip. Sidney Anderson, also of Minnesota, was suggested.

"Nothing doing," said Anderson.

Anderson felt he couldn't discipline others when—

"I've got to go out to Indiana in a day or two," he said, "and I think I'll just go on out home while I'm about it. Anyway, there's nothing we can do here in a legislative way that will help our chances in November. We may as well go home and look after our own campaigns."

That's the way four-fifths of House members feel about it. They used to toe the mark when the whip cracked the party lash. But now they fear the folk at home more than they do party discipline.

"The party can take care of itself in Washington," they say. "We've got our own worries back home."

Leaders say the House has never been so split as it is now over important legislation. Meanwhile statesmen's minds are not on the job of legislating. They're more afraid of the whip the voters will wield November 7 than the G. O. P. whip—even if the leaders can find somebody to take the job.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

CHICAGO, Ill.—New York's prospective world's series contenders, the Giants and Yankees, are separated today by the narrowest of margins from a dyed in the wool, mathematically certain hold on the 1922 championship, in the National and American league.

The Giants can clinch the pennant by winning only one of two games scheduled with the St. Louis Cardinals today.

The Yankees, as well as all other American league clubs are not scheduled today. Leading St. Louis by 3 1-2 games the Yankees need win but one of their four contests to settle the race. A defeat for the Browns in any one of its three contests would bring the same result.

The Browns meanwhile, kept mathematically in the race by defeating Philadelphia 7 to 4, while the Pirates gained a half game on the Giants by dividing a double-header with Brooklyn. The Dodgers came from behind to win the first 4 to 2, but lost the second 11 to 3, when Pittsburgh crossed the plate ten times in the sixth inning.

Both New York clubs lost yesterday. Rogers Hornsby's two home runs which brought his season's total to 42, helped the St. Louis Cardinals down the Giants 10 to 6, while Uhle out-pitched Shawkey and Cleveland blanked the Yankees 3 to 0 in the final game of the series.

TREND IS TOWARD CONSOLIDATION OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

Gettle Sees State Divided into Districts Linked by Chains of Power Companies

MADISON, Wis.—That there is a growing tendency in Wisconsin towards consolidation of power plants and to some extent, gas properties, which may see the state divided into districts linked by chains of power companies is the belief expressed Monday by L. E. Gettle, member of the state railroad commission. Mr. Gettle points to the numerous consolidations of the past year as the basis for this belief and is of the opinion that the 1923 legislature will be called upon to enact special laws in relation to this question.

"There can be little question," declared Mr. Gettle, "that there is an ever growing tendency in Wisconsin towards the consolidation of public utilities, especially that based on power. It is only recently that we see the expansion of the Wisconsin-Minnesota company in the northern part of the state; the control of the Milwaukee Northern stock by the T. M. E. R. and L. company of Milwaukee; the inter-change mileage book affecting all electric roads in eastern Wisconsin; the merger by the Wisconsin Securities company of the electric railways, gas and electric systems of Green Bay, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Marinette, Menomonee, Sturgeon Bay, Kewaunee and Algoma; and the present proposal of a supply of electric power to a score of cities in the Baraboo valley.

"The real basis for this consolidation is water power and the development of water power. It is true that some municipal plants are being abandoned or taken over as result of this tendency. Take a small city that builds its own power plant. If it is a growing city it is not long before the original plant must be replaced with much larger units. Now we have a consolidation company buying the power at its source from one of the large power development companies of the state. Lines are stretched through a whole territory and a number of cities are grouped together for the service. Out from each city may run the lines serving the rural communities surrounding."

That this extension of these consolidations in Wisconsin may result in legislative action during the 1923 session is probable. Mr. Gettle points out that the railroad commission, organized for the purpose of protecting the consumers, is in reality able to do little in this work under these consolidations and inter-contract cases.

"Practically the only way we have of regulation is through the approval of stock sales or the issuance of new stock necessary. This is especially true in inter-contracts between companies. Actually we are but protecting the buyer of stocks in some of these companies instead of safeguarding the consumer of the utility products. This is a question that will very likely be called to the attention of the 1923 legislature so that we may protect the consumers."

That there will be a continuance of this consolidation of companies supplying power from a central source in the years to come that will link the main cities by these chain systems is the belief of Mr. Castle. The problem is comparatively a new one for the state commission and the rules and precedents set will have an even more important place in the regulation of public utilities in the future.

LOTS OF THRILLS AND EXCITEMENT IN "NIGHTCAP"

Melodramatic Success to be Played Tuesday at the La Crosse Theatre

In Max Marcin and Guy Bolton's melodramatic success, "The Nightcap," which comes to the La Crosse theater on Tuesday, there are many thrills and exciting scenes that bring one's hair to an end, during the action of the play throughout. During the eight months' run at The Playhouse, Chicago, where this attraction played to capacity business, this verdict was often heard in lobbies and smoking rooms between acts.

The action of the play takes place at the home of a bank president. He has hit a snag in financing a huge project; the only way that he can see at the approach of federal examiners, is to gather some $500,000 in life insurance and have someone shoot him; he must be slain and the hero is willing to be slain for the benefit of his depositors. There is situation after situation in this mysterious play, capably handled by a specially selected cast, which includes Karl Way, formerly with "The Bat," Cora King, Madelene Hoover, Robert Jones, Jack Daly, Howard Walsh and others. This is the same production that played Chicago and New York.

No money was taken, the robbers being put to flight when Miss Jessie Snyder, assistant cashier, screamed and gave the alarm.

His attorney, Z. S. Rice pleaded with the court for leniency, stating that the man had no more mentality than a child, and claimed also that the defendant's widowed mother depended upon him for support. The Judge, however, fined him $450 and sentenced him to ninety days in jail at hard labor. Upon being unable to pay the fine, the Judge sentenced him to ninety days in jail, and the other ninety days' sentence was to begin at the expiration of the first. The attorney for the defendant stated that he was unable to pay the fine and would have to go to jail for the full six months.

MADISON GIRL AND LA CROSSE MAN ARE MARRIED SATURDAY

LUTHER MEMORIAL Church of Madison was the scene Saturday night of the marriage of Mr. Herbert W. Skogstad, son of Mrs. Ida Skogstad of this city, and Miss Celesta Pearl, daughter of Mrs. Mary Rupp, 511 East Washington Avenue, Madison. The Reverend A. J. Solden, pastor of the church, read the service at half past seven.

Ferns and asters banked against the chancel and two bride's baskets of asters were used for decorations.

Mrs. George Qualley played the organ while the guests were ushered by Messrs. Herbert Hauser and Roy Sorenson, both of La Crosse. The musical numbers included "Nuptial March" by Bernard; "At an Old Trysting Place" by Mac Dowell; "From the Land of Sky-Blue Water" by Cadman; "At Twilight" by Stebbins; and "Love's Medley" by Shelly. The bridal march from Lohengrin and the Mendelsohn wedding march were the processional and recessional music.

Preceding the ceremony Edward Swain sang "Ruth and Naomi." During the service "On the Wings of Love" by Mendelsohn, was played on the organ.

Miss Emma Homer and Miss Iva Anderson of Madison, the bridesmaids, were the first to enter in the wedding party. Their gowns were fashioned alike of crepe satin, Miss Homer wearing peach color and Miss Anderson, orchid. Spanish lace, beautifully draped, was the only trimming. Trains hung from the waistline at the sides. A shower bouquet of Colonial roses was carried by Miss Homer, and of Columbia roses by Miss Anderson. Silver bandeaux and slippers completed their costumes.

Mrs. Leon R. Wheeler, Canajoharie, N. Y., a sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor wearing her own wedding gown, of ivory crepe satin and Chantilly lace. She wore a band of silver in her hair, and silver slippers, and carried a bouquet of premier roses.

Mrs. Wheeler was a bride of October last year. At her wedding she was attended by her sister, the bride of Saturday evening.

Miss Rupp entered with her brother, Mr. Floyd C. Rupp, St. Paul, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by Mr. Skogstad and his best man, Mr. Arthur Schubert, La Crosse. Her gown of ivory crepe satin was fashioned on Grecian lines with a court train and with draperies at the sides which were held in place by a cabochon that extended in a shower of bead fringe below the hem. A bandeau of pearls at the back of her head held her long tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Mary Rupp, mother of the bride, wore black lace over black satin, and Mrs. Ida Skogstad, La Crosse, mother of the bridegroom, wore gray canton crepe.

Masses of asters were used in the rooms at the home of the bride where a reception followed the ceremony. Receiving with the wedding party and Mrs. Rupp and Mrs. Skogstad, were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Rupp, brother and sister-in-law, St. Paul, of the bride.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included Miss Minnie Olson, St. Paul, and Miss Hilda Magnerson, Miss Emma Zeisler, Sam Knight and the Misses Agnes and Minnie Knight, all of La Crosse.

Mr. and Mrs. Skogstad left on a motor trip in the east for six weeks.

Members of the party were entertained Friday night at the home of the bride. Saturday noon a dinner was given at the home for the party and the out-of-town guests.

Mr. Skogstad is a draftsman in the office of Parkinson and Dockindorff of this city.

SECRET MEETINGS WITH MRS. TIERNAN DENIED BY POULIN

Denial Brings Cry of "Liar" from Woman Accuser; Mrs. Poulin Faints

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—A denial by Poulin that he held clandestine meetings with Mrs. Tiernan brought Mrs. Tiernan to her feet, exclaiming:

"You are a liar."

"Sit down, you'll hear more than that," answered Poulin.

It was with difficulty that the woman was restrained, as Poulin continued his denials of clandestine meetings. Following the scene, Mrs. Poulin collapsed.

To add to the excitement, Mrs. Badrick Donahoe, a half-sister of Mrs. Harry Poulin, fainted. Prof. J. P. Tiernan, husband of the woman who accuses Poulin of ruining her life, sat throughout the session with bowed head, except when restraining his wife from interrupting the testimony.

Albert Davis, earlier in the mornnig, had testified that he is a communicant at St. Joseph church and that he saw Poulin and his wife at the Lenten services of 1921 during which time Mrs. Tiernan had testified to having had clandestine meetings with the defendant. He said his pew was directly behind that of the Poulin family and that he (Davis) had missed the services only three times. He knew Poulin only by sight at that time, he added.

ANIMAL BONE AMONG THOSE IN SAILSTAD FIRE SAYS EXPERT

Physician Called to Stand to Refute Claim Bones Were those of Missing Man

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Testimony to the effect that the foot bone of an animal was included among those recovered from the ashes of the Pollack cottage at Lake Nebagamon, from which it is alleged by Mrs. Leona Sailstad-Richardson that her first husband, Edward J. Sailstad perished, was given on the witness stand in federal court Monday morning by Dr. H. G. Kristjanson, Milwaukee, appearing as an expert witness for the New York Life Insurance company, defendant in the $10,000 suit brought to compel payment on policies carried by the missing Eau Claire manufacturer.

Dr. Kristjanson declared that he discovered the bones among the supposed remains of Sailstad when they were exhumed from the grave in Forest Hill cemetery, Eau Claire, in September, 1920, for examination.

The witness claimed to have had much experience in the handling of burned bodies. He was one of the physicians assisting at the Iroquois theater fire in Chicago.

G. O. P. MAJORITY IN NEXT CONGRESS DECLARED CERTAIN

Outlook Brighter Now than Short Time Ago Says Party Chairman

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Confidence that the republicans would have a majority of sixty in the next house was expressed Monday by Representative Wood, Indiana, chairman of the republican congressional committee, during a conference on the political situation with President Harding. Mr. Wood said the republicans undoubtedly would sustain losses but that the outlook for the party was brighter than a month or so ago.

Mr. Wood regarded it as a certainty that President Harding would not make any political speeches in connection with the congressional campaign. Members of the cabinet, however, are expected to participate in states where the result is likely to be close.

Trend is Democratic?

The political campaign opens "with the trend unmistakably toward the democratic party" Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, chairman of the democratic senatorial congressional committee, said upon leaving on a long cross continent trip devoted to speech making and political conferences. He will make short speeches in Michigan during October 25-29.

CANDIDATES OUT FOR SERGEANT AT ARMS OF THE ASSEMBLY

Bartengale and Hewett, Both Former Assemblymen, Seek the Position

DOUBT CONTROL OF SENATE BY LA FOLLETTE FACTION

Can Only Rule With Aid of the Socialist Members

MADISON, Wis.—P. W. Bartengale for several terms a member of the lower house of Wisconsin legislature is a candidate for sergeant at arms in the assembly. Mr. Bartingale was a member of the last session and was defeated by a close vote. The position of sergeant at arms of the assembly has been held for the past two sessions by P. G. Cretney of Madison, a former assemblyman from Iowa county. Mr. Cretney has been identified with the conservative of the Republican party and the overwhelming La Follette endorsement of this year, it is believed that some La Follette man will be elected as sergeant.

One other man mentioned as a possibility for sergeant at arms for the house is Harry Hewett a former assemblyman from Clark County. Hewett lacked two votes of being nominated for sergeant in the house caucus two years ago.

There will be no opposition to the reelection of C. Schaefer as chief clerk of the house. The civil service commission will give examinations during October to fill places as legislative employes, stenographers, clerks, messengers and night watchmen. These positions pay from $3.50 to $5.00 a day during the session of the legislature.

There is some question as to whether the La Follette faction will be able to organize the senate. There are about fifteen conservative members in the upper house and 18 La Follette members. Should the socialists join with the La Follette men they could organize the senate. If the socialist refuse to cooperate with the Progressive senators there is a possibility that the conservatives may have sufficient votes to organize the senate. At previous sessions of the legislature the socialists have refused to agree to a bipartisan arrangement for the organization of the senate, the committee assignments are worked out by a stirring committee, nominated by the senate caucus. There is a possibility that the Senate committee might be organized against the progressives. Among some of the older senators there is a movement under way to make Senator H. A. Huber, Stoughton, chairman of the finance committee. This is probably the most important committee assignment in the upper house.

NORMAL LECTURE COURSE TO OPEN ON OCTOBER 2

The Normal Lecture Course opens Monday evening, October 2 with a concert that will display two most excellent voices and the skill of a renowned pianist.

Perhaps no career in the history of American singing has offered more promise than that of Miss Gladys Swarthout, the young American soprano who will sing here on the night of Monday October 2 in the opening number of the Normal Lecture course.

The thousands throughout the west who have heard her unite in predicting that she will be ranked among the greatest singers of the day. Miss Swarthout's versatility is illustrated by the variety of work she has done. A review of her career would show her touring the west at the head of her own concert company; it would show her as prima donna in one of the most popular musical plays of 1919, as an oratorio singer of enviable reputation and as soloist with some of America's greatest symphony orchestras.

Preceding Miss Swarthout's second appearance with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune of Dec. 5, 1920, said of her, "When a soloist has achieved success it is always a good idea to bring him or her back again to the public who have an idea of what they may expect. Gladys Swarthout, soprano, gave evidence of exceptional talent when she appeared with the orchestra last season and her re-engagement will be welcome to those who enjoyed her beautiful voice and style at that time."

The other vocalist of the evening is Mr. James Hamilton.

It would be difficult to find a singer who makes more friends before an audience than Mr. Hamilton. Practically every stranger becomes a friend by the time he has finished one group, for there is that "something" about him that removes the barrier that so few artists seem capable of eliminating. His voice has that natural fine timber and this coupled with a good personality and a thorough understanding of the music readily makes him a great favorite. These soloists will have as accompanist a real master of his art, Mr. Hubert Carlin. His work when accompanying Riccardo Martin displayed all the pleasing qualities desired in one of that position. Mr. Carlin is himself no mean soloist as he proved to his earlier audience in this city. His return will be welcomed on next Monday evening.

In The MOVIES

NAZIMOVA—RIVOLI

Woman's duty to herself as a factor in the general scheme of life is the theme of Nazimova's film version of Ibsen's "A Doll's House," presented Sunday at the Rivoli theatre, with Nazimova herself in the star role of Nora—the great Nazimova who has really popularized Ibsen in this country, and whose portrayal of the character of the doll-wife Nora, loses no whit of its strength in the transfer from the stage to the screen.

With all the subtlety of emotion for which this Russian star is noted, she portrays in "A Doll's House," the development of the light-hearted, kittenish wife into the woman who rises gamely to the emergency when her self-satisfied and smugly self-conscious husband is ill to the point of death and saves his life, only to be condemned because of the means she employed.

The shock of this condemnation; the blow that suddenly awakens her to the realization of her husband's supreme selfishness, and to her complete understanding that she has been but a plaything in a veritable doll's house—a toy to be discarded at any moment—all these emotions are made to stand out clear and distinct through the splendid artistry of the famous Nazimova.

The great moment in this great photoplay, however, comes when Nora electrifies the placid egotist, Torvald Helmer, by going out from him into the night to seek a new destiny on terms more fair and equal. This high light in the dramatic situation is presented through Nazimova's inimitable acting, and those who have been fortunate enough to have seen her stage presentation of this character know that the film version loses none of its beauty and retains all of its emotional strength.

CASINO TODAY

Charm and vivacity are two of the outstanding characteristics of Dorothy Dalton's Paramount star.—They are a part of her. They are not traits appparent only on dress parade, but they are always in evidence.

In the filming of "The Siren Call," fhich comes to the Casino theater tonight., Miss Dalton was the leading figure in many situations which would have tried the patience of a less equable star. Under the heat of the studio lights she had to dance in scene after scene in an Alaskan casino; and she had to pose in many emotional situations. In other scenes, taken in the mountains of California, her athletic training was called upon to the limit, but she always came through with a smile.

She has always been that way, and that is why her circle of admirers is always widening.

VAUDEVILLE—MAJESTIC

Vaudeville featuring a very dressy and sophisticated act doing bits of musical comedy will open the week today at the Majestic. Fay and Connell Sisters, a man and four girls, present the feature offering, and the act is represented as beautifully costumed and set in its own special scenery. Besides this there is a new sort of blackface act, featuring a darky flyer and an English fop who turns out to be an English aviation officer. The new situation permits an entirely new sort of burnt-cork comedy which Goforth and Mack exploit to the full. Other acts are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Siegfried in "The Home Run," Copeland and Brayton and "Use Your Own Judgment," and Pedrero Culanian, a wire wizard.

The bill will also feature Rounh One of "The Leather Pushers," a series of film versions of H. C. Witwer's noted boxing stories, and Dustin Farnum in "Strange Idols."

RIVIERA WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

Wednesday night at the Riviera Theater the audience will see one of the greatest photoplays of the year ushered into this amusement palace. It is "Silver Wings," a William Fox presentation, featuring Mary Carr, the famous player of "Over the Hill."

Here is a simple picture that is as significant as anything the cinema has developed to date. In its intense and vital meaning, it is as profound as Hamlet, and in its visible manifestations it is too far above the vast majority of motion pictures. It has comedy relief, dramatic suspense, action and consistency and it can safely be said that its fundamental message is as great a work of fiction as anything emanating from Ibsen, Shaw or Conrad.

The utter sincerity of the picture cannot be questioned. It touches human experience at every turn. Perhaps there is nothing more fire and unalterable than mother love in this wide world. "Silver Wings" has done the same thing in spiritual terms.

RIVIERA TONIGHT

In spite of the fact that there were no photographers to record the dress and customs of the masses during the years of the decadence of the Roman empire, Cecil B. DeMille has faithfully reproduced a scene of the barbarian invasion of Rome in his latest Paramount picture, "Manslaughter," which is being enthusiastically received all over the country.

Leatrice Joy, who is one of the principals of the modern portion of the story, is the hostess at a lavishly beautiful Roman bacchanal which is interrupted by Thomas Meighan in the role of the leader of the Goths. Lois Wilson, John Milrem and Casson Ferguson are the other members of the notable cast appearing in this sequence.

The story deals with a young American girl of wealth who is a speed maniac and who is the cause of the death of a motor policeman. The district attorney who prosecutes her, loves her, but he believes that the only way to save her from herself is to punish her. She goes to prison and when he calls upon her, she treats him with contempt. He dissipates and later when the girl is released, she is the means of reforming him. The two are united after many thrilling incidents transpire.

This Paramount feature will be at the Riviera tonight and Tuesday.

STRAND TODAY

It is easier to start dame rumor on her way in a motion picture studio than anywhere else in the world. Jack Holt, popular Paramount star, was hit in the eye with a polo ball while playing on the Beverley Hills' team in a game at the Midwick Country Club He came to the studio the following day with a noticeable black eye.

A bunch of extra girls caught a glimpse of Jack's darkened optic. Immediately there was much mysterious conversation. "I know," whispered one; "Jack's been in a fight. Isn't it too bad!"

But the eye didn't hold up the stars work in the picture. The long shots were made and in a few days the optic was sufficiently healed so that closer scenes could be filmed. The picture will be exhibited at the Strand Theater tonight. Fritzi Brunette is leading woman.

At the Rivoli Theatre today and tomorrow.

STRAW VOTE ON DRY LAW MISLEADING IS CLAIM OF BADGER

MADISON, Wis.—That straw votes such as the one being taken by the Literary Digest on the prohibition question are often misleading, was the statement by William C. Dean, chairman of the prohibition state central committee. Mr. Dean declared that the figures did show that the advocates of prohibition, however, could not rest in fancied security.

"The poll on the prohibition question," said Mr. Dean, "being taken by the Literary Digest still shows a preponderance in favor of a modification of the Volstead law, presumably in favor of beer and light wines. We wonder if some who have other objections to some of the details of the Volstead act have not also registered their vote with this faction. However this may be, the figures published thus far show that the friends of real prohibition cannot rest in any sense of fancied security. They must be alert and active in the support of their cause."

A Drama of The Mad Age

Is the modern world, like ancient Rome, racing to ruin on a wave of jazz and cocktails?

This greatest of all the De Mille productions gives the startling answer.

Stronger in cast and story, more gorgeous in gowns and settings, more amazingly beautiful in spectacle than anything ever seen upon the screen. With lovely Leatrice Joy as a reckless society beauty and Thomas Meighan as the hero who, loving her, sends her to prison.

And a wonder-cast of stars including Lois Wilson, John Miltern, George Fawcett, Julia Faye, Edythe Chapman, Jack Mower, Casson Ferguson, Dorothy Cumming, Mickey Moore, James Neill and Sylvia Ashton.

MONTAGUES TAKE OPENING SERIES BATTLE FROM NELSONS

M'CAULEY BLANKS 1921 CHAMPIONS GREAT EXHIBITION

Nelsons Fail to Reach Third Base as Montagues Win, Score 8 to 0

ESTIMATE ATTENDANCE AT OPENER PLACED AT 10,000

MacCauley Allows Four Blows; Six off Jaeger

A GRANDSTAND filled to overflowing and a huge flank in the outfield placing the estimated attendance at between 7,000 and 10,000 spectators, thronged Copeland park Sunday afternoon to witness the opening battle of the city series which was an overwhelming victory for the Montague baseball club over the Nelson clothiers. The score was 8 to 0.

Shortly before 12 o'clock, three hours before the appointed time of the game, anxious fans began flocking to the stands and by 2:30 ushers were unable to handle the crowds who rushed to the box office for seats at the last moment. Overflow from the stands were forced to witness the game from the outfield, where a semi-circle of spectators, packed twenty deep in places, had already congregated.

The Montague club was the first to take the field in infield practice and entertained fans with a brilliant workout which they carried on into the game. It was evident that the club was out for victory. The Nelsons followed with a brief turn at practice after which a calm prevailed before hostilities began.

McCauley Victory

The Montague victory was a characteristic one for "Syl" McCauley, diminutive slab artist for the southsiders. Displaying usual cool and steady nerve, in keeping with his work during the season for the Montague club, McCauley was master in each inning of the battle, never being in danger, and never faltering throughout the entire contest. Four hits, two of which came in the second inning, was the total garnered by the Nelsons off his delivery.

McCauley's super mound exhibition was further manifested in the fact that on no occasion did a Nelson batsman reach third base. Johnson and Klandrud alone reached second. But three balls were batted to the outfield and eleven men were retired by the strikeout route. He allowed one man a walk.

The erratic work of Jaeger on the mound for the Nelsons, together with the seeming blow-up of the Nelson outfield and costly errors in the infield, contributed largely to the overwhelming tally. Two hits, one a triple, and two costly errors enabled the Montagues to get away to a flying start with four scores in the first inning. It was a staggering blow to the 1921 champions and one from which they were unable to recover during the remainder of the game.

Score 3 in Fifth

Touching Jaeger for three additional hits, accompanied by two errors, counted three more runs for the Montagues in the fifth frame. Freng's inability to loop Moore's fly in the sixth after holding it momentarily, coupled with Weigent's drive, enabled Moore to annex the final count. Jaeger allowed a total of six blows, but four walks and ragged support opened the road to victory for the Montagues. The Nelson moundsman struck out seven men.

"Ducky" Smith was the one dependable offensive unit in the Nelson uniform Sunday. Although he was unable to connect for a hit, "Ducky" played a brilliant game at second and alone showed the old time fight which has been characteristic of the Nelson club.

In a desperate attempt to avert a shutout, Manager Satek rushed Klandrud and Shields to the firing line in the eighth and ninth innings, but to no avail. Shields grounded out and Klandrud got a single but was unable to collect on it when Schaefer was thrown out and Freng whiffed to end the game.

Bobby Moore Montague third sacker, figured in perhaps the most brilliant play of the game in the seventh inning when he robbed Schaefer of a hit in taking his hot grounder and throwing him out with a pretty peg to first. Moore forsook his own vicinity to make the play and without recovering his balance, made the peg to first.

BADGERS STRONGER THAN WAS FIRST PREDICTED AS WEEK'S PRACTICE CLOSES

BY BOB DUNN

With Wisconsin's first week of real football practice a matter of history, one fact of consequence has been developed, namely, that the Badger eleven this fall will be a stronger team than was presumed would represent the Cardinal this season when the first call for candidates was issued.

Late summer gloom has given way to some hope as prospective candidates for doubtful positions have taken the field and shown their wares.

Even Coach John R. Richards stated in a talk last week that Wisconsin's team this year is above the average, which means that the Badgers have a fighting chance to come out of the season ranked with the best.

Barr Reports

Barr's eligibility and the reporting of Pulaski for an end position cleared the football situation here considerably and gives the coach much more time to devote to other serious problems in the development of his machine.

The end situation appears to be about certain at the end of the first week. Gus Tebell, of course, will bring up one end of the line and Pulaski is slated for the other. Rumor even has it in some quarters that the play of Pulaski in hard contests is superior to that of Tebell's. While such is not the case, it shows that Wisconsin's second end this year can be counted on to perform.

Both regular ends were out of the punting scrimmage on Friday night while the secondary cadmen wokred out. Irish will undoubtedly be one of the utility ends for his work shows up well and he can be used in other positions. Field has a good build and the coach has shown an inclination to groom him for the utility man at the other end of the line.

Watch Developments

As many people are watching developments at center as anywhere else. The contest between Nichols, Pearse and Teckemeyer is a keen one. Teckemeyer is a good passer but is eclipsed by the other two men in the other departments of the game. Nichols plays a hard game but his passing is not as accurate as it should be. Although Nichols has been favored by the coach for the position, it would appear from the side lines that Pearse is the better man on both offense and defense.

Pearse is as hard a fighter as any one of the trio, has had good experience on the gridiron both in high school, normal and on the all-Americans. On the defense especially his work has been outstanding in breaking up the plays of his opponents.

Whichever man is used at center regularly, the other will probably find some service at guard. Nichols has already performed there in scrimmage.

The way Richards has been shifting around the guards and tackles shows that he is not entirely satisfied with the arrangement of the first part of the eek. Buelow, however, appears to be a fixture at left tackle. His defensive play has been one of the features of the week.

Hohfeldt at the other tackle, however, has not been doing so well. Last year at guard he was not on a par with most of the line but necessity has moved him out to tackle. Richards has been trying Murray, a backfield candidate, at a tackle position, and placed Hohfeldt back at a guard position. Hohfeldt would undoubtedly show up to better advantage at guard than he would at tackle if Richards could discover another man who would fill the tackle's shoes. It is a difficult proposition, however, to fill this important position in the line with a man who has not had considerable experience there.

The eligibility of Christiansen is not certain inasmuch as he was required to write off a con examination last week but it is expected that he made the scholastic grade for he has been working regularly at guard on the left side of the line.

Murray in Line

When he first reported to the squad, Murray was a candidate for the fullback's job. When it appeared that there would be better men out for the position, we suggested that the proper thing to do would be to shift Murray to the line. He is a hard player, has a good build and handles himself well in scrimmage. In fact, he looks like too good a man to leave off the squad. Murray looks something like Eggebrecht from the side and his case is similar to Eggebrecht's. Eggebrecht came here as a backfield man but before he left school was holding down a regular job as an end where he found himself to be a valuable man.

In the backfield, things look pretty certain as to what men the coach will be using most through the season. The fight for the regular job as fullback, however, continues to occupy the center of attention as far as the backfield is concerned.

Harris, Taft and Crozier are the candidates. Crozier was sitting on the side lines Friday night and on Saturday saw more action. With Harris and Taft showing up to good advantage, however, it seems as though the coach is not paying the attention to Crozier that he did last year. The sub-fullback from last year's eleven did not report for practice until after the starting of classes on the hill.

Harris at Full

Of the fullback candidates, the first week's verdict is that Harris has the lead although he is closely pressed by Taft. The ability of Harris is such, however, that if he is not used at full, he will find service at a halfback position. When it comes to playing real football, Harris has a decided edge on Taft. Taft, on the other hand, has an advantage in punting that may keep him on the team. It is hard to see how Wisconsin is going to get along very well this year without the services of a first class punter and except for Taft, a real punter has not been discovered on the team. Barr is about as good as the average but his punting is far from the kind of punting the team will have to have if it is not to be working at a disadvantage.

The turnout of freshmen candidates last week speaks well for Wisconsin's football possibilities in years to come. Over 125 yearlings signed up for the fall sport. By Saturday, more than 90 of the 125 candidates were out in uniform. Among the many bidders for jobs on the green eleven are many men possessing a lot of beef who have enjoyed remarkable high school careers.

Coach Keg Driver will be in charge of the freshmen, at least for the time being. Jim Brader is assisting him in the development of the yearlings. Coach Jones stated on Saturday that he would probably take hold of the freshmen team for a few weeks before the Minnesota game in developing the offense of the frosh to be sent against the varsity.

Fans Produce Enthusiastic Setting For Opening Battle Of "World's Serious" Here

IT'S been many a long day, if ever, since La Crosse witnessed a scene of enthusiasm and a bedlam of noise such as was the setting for the first game of the local "world's serious". Pretty nearly one-third of the city was parked in the stands and banked up around the field, and every spectator was a rabid partisan. All around the field there were flashes of the long green as fans shook money arguments beneath the noses of their neighbors, and there were two or three embryo fights a-borning long before the umpire shouted "play ba-a-awl."

Noise before the game was about fifty-fifty Nelson and Montague. But of course that didn't last. The Nelson fans had little to say except for die-hard shouts of encouragement to their team after the fatal first. But the racket didn't cease. The Montague supporters, inspired by impending victory, made twice as much noise. And every time "Syl" McCauley came to bat they gave him an ovation.

Razz?—Plenty

It was a crowd out to make the most of every incident amusing or otherwise. The fans razzed the umpire and the players as occasion seemed to demand, and favorites were "kidded" raucously as they came to bat. All this was under full head of steam an hour and a half before the game, when the stands were already filled. As newcomers filtered in the spectators shouted, "Montague fans this way"—"Nelsons over here," and the stands were fairly evenly divided in two well marked rooting sections by the time the game started. The southsiders had the south end of the grandstand, the Nelsons the west section, and it was a hard life for the occasional representative of the opposing section who was imbedded in the clan of the other side.

The crowd was full of pep, and considerable money was put up in the result before the game. There was, as always, more talking than betting, however, and the Montague fans had a glorious time during the preliminary practice when a Nelsonite who had somehow got lost in "the solid south," but was upholding his end in the chatter with enthusiasm nevertheless, was "called." He had been talking money, and some Montague fans fifty feet away hastily framed up a jackpot which one of their number scrambled over with and shook under the north-sider's nose. He didn't take the bet, and the Montague folks lifted the roof giving him the raspberry. For a full five minutes they rode him, until something that happened on the field distracted their attention.

A girl came through the stands all alone. She was a pretty girl, and headed for the Nelson section. Somebody started to "kid" her, and the whole stand took it up. "This way! Nice seat here! Oh, ain't she cute!" rang through the stand while the blushing flapper scurried for a hiding place.

Then came a man. They started to "kid" him too. He lost his temper at some particularly rude jibe, and dared the jiber to "come down here and say that to me!" And then they all joined in and rode him to his seat with enthusiasm.

Umpire Flass has a raucous, but effective way of calling balls and strikes, with a nasal twang. The first time he yelled "ba-a-awl tuh" the fans whooped with glee. Incidentally, most of the fans seemed to agree that Flass was calling them right. There were some yowls of dissatisfaction with his judgment, but mostly the bugs took it out on players who showed hostility to any decision.

After the first inning, and after all the rest of them until along about the eighth, the Montague section devoted much energy to counting the score for the benefit of the Nelsons fans. And in between times they enjoyed themselves by asking the Nelson supporters why they didn't use the big megaphones with which many of them were provided.

A Montague fan, after the second inning with his team safely in the lead and McCauley's control of the situation well-established paraded the stand with his fist full of bills, shaking his wad over his head and offering ten to five that the southsiders would win. He found no takers. There were, however, no bets visible or audible on the outcome of the series. It is agreed that the Montagues have got the edge by taking the first game, particularly with such a safe margin, but the Nelson supporters are still rooting for victory and talking about what Big Benn will be able to do.

FIRST SCRIMMAGE FOR HIGH SCHOOL SQUAD SATURDAY

Rochester Eleven Comes Here for Opening Grid Battle End of Week

In former years the La Crosse high school has been represented by some formidable football teams and this years' eleven may be no exception. For after two hard weeks of extensive drill in the fundamentals of the game, Coach Keogan's gridiron proteges loomed up in astonishing form in the first scrimmage of the year Saturday afternoon.

Now that scrimmage has begun Coach Keogan will be given opportunities to test the worth of a number of candidates who have shown promise. The first string Saturday was lined up with Hettinger and Weigent at the halfback positions; Art Frey at full; Regel at quarter; Bleakley, center; Blatter and Fritz, guards; Marcou and Liscovec, tackles, and Cameron and Ash holding down the ends. Substitutions were made, with Zoerb taking a half, Whearon and Maloney as guards, Fritz shifting to tackle, and Lord replacing Bleakley at center. Captain Abraham, Dunham and Rendler failed to make their appearance on the field yesterday afternoon. In the above material may be found speed, endurance, fighting spirit, gray matter and everything that tends to make a championship eleven.

The first tilt of the season has been secured with Rochester, Minn., on the home field next Saturday afternoon. Local fans will have their first chance to see the Red and Black in action.

BATTLING SIKI DEFEATS GEORGES IN SIXTH ROUND

Carpentier Unable to Meet Punches of Negro Champ; Wins in Sixth

PARIS.—By the Associated Press.—Georges Carpentier, idol of French fight fans has at last been toppled from his pedestal, and today a new king reigns in the European heavyweight division.

Battling Siki, a Senegalese, hammered the great Georges around the ring in the new Buffalo velodrome last night before a howling mob of spectators and sent him down in the sixth round to stay. The bout was to have gone twenty rounds.

Besides the loss of his prestige and his title, Carpentier today was suffering from the hurts of a badly battered body. One of his eyes was closed during the fight, his nose was broken and he was otherwise beaten up. An effort was made to save his title for him at the time of the knockout by a ruling from the referee that Siki had tripped him and thus disqualified himself, but the crowd would not have it and with a violent demonstration a reversal of the decision was demanded and finally secured—an hour after the fight had ended following a consultation of the fight judges.

DAHL'S FORDS WIN FIRST SERIES TILT WITH RIVOLIS, 9-6

The Dahl's Fords won the opening game of the city amateur championship Sunday, defeating the Rivoli nine at West avenue field, 9 to 6. The Ford senior team has gone through the season without a defeat, "Cappie" Groth hurling nineteen victories and Rudi Krismer one.

Although the Fords were not in their usual form yesterday, they were never in serious danger of defeat. Groth, on the mound for the Fords was effective in the pinches throughout the game. He allowed six hits while the Fords garnered eight off Affeldt.

Troyanek and Schnell, of the Fords and Rivolis respectively, collected home runs.

The Portuguese were the first great colonizers among modern states.

EXPRESS CONFIDENCE OF STRONG GRIDIRON CREW AT NOTRE DAME

Followers Make Prediction in Spite of Fact that Eighteen Letter Men are Out

ROCKNE TO CHOOSE LINEUP FROM ABLE SUBSTITUTES

Last Year's Frosh Squad to Supply Excellent Material

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Confidence of developing another strong football team this season is expressed by athletic followers at the University of Notre Dame despite the fact that eighteen men who won football monograms last season will be missing from the squad this fall.

Graduation, the professionalism investigation of last year and failure to return to college accounts for the loss of all of last year's varsity and a number of substitutes.

Coach Knute Rockne anticipated the loss of a number of players and his lineup for this season will include many names familiar to the football fans because of creditable work in substituting for the regulars.

The leader of the team is Glenn Carberry of Ames, Iowa, who was substitute end for two years. He has participated in many of the most important games. Around him will be such players as DeGree, Castner, Desch, Lieb, Cotton, Bergman, Maher, Voss and Mayl.

Last year's freshman team will supply some excellent material according to Coach Rockne, and he is also expecting a number of recruits from the inter-hall teams.

Notre Dame faces a difficult schedule of ten games to be played as follows:

Sept. 30, Kalamazoo College at South Bend.
Oct. 7, St. Louis University at South Bend.
Oct. 14, Purdue at Lafayette.
Oct. 21, De Pauw at South Bend.
Oct. 28, Georgia Tech at Atlanta, Ga.
Nov. 4, Indiana at South Bend.
Nov. 11, Army at West Point.
Nov. 18, Butler at Indianapolis.
Nov. 25, Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh.
Nov. 30, Nebraska at Lincoln, Neb.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1919, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:
"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, that there be added to article XI of the constitution a new section to read: (Article XI) Section 3b. Any city, in addition to the indebtedness of five per centum authorized by section 3 of this article, may incur an indebtedness not exceeding another five per centum on the value of the taxable property in such city for the purpose of acquiring or constructing street railway properties, or properties for the production, transmission, delivery or furnishing of light, heat, water or power to the public"; now, therefore, be it
Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, that the foregoing amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.
Note—(Under the present provisions of the constitution, cities and other municipalities are prohibited from becoming indebted in any manner or for any purpose to any amount, including existing indebtedness, in the aggregate exceeding five per centum on the value of taxable property therein, to be ascertained by the last assessment for state and county taxes previous to the incurring of such indebtedness. If this proposed amendment is ratified by the people, cities will be authorized to incur an additional indebtedness, not exceeding another five per centum on such value, for the purpose of acquiring or constructing the public utilities mentioned in the amendment.
The said election will be held in the regular polling places in each precinct and the polls will be open as follows: In the City of La Crosse from 6 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening; in the City of Onalaska and the several towns and villages from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5:30 o'clock in the evening.
In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal at the Court House in the City of La Crosse, Wisconsin, this 12th day of September, A. D. 1922.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK—The upward movement of prices was resumed at the opening of Monday's stock market. Gulf States Steel was pushed up over three points to a new high record for the year, some of the recent buying being attributed to a group of Birmingham bankers. St. Joseph Lead and Jones' Bottle also advanced more than a point to new high prices. While the buying extended over most of the list, high grade rail, oil, chemical, equipment and public utilities shares were most in demand. Atchison led the advance in rails, with a gain of two points, and material improvement was noted in Southern Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio. Standard of New Jersey resumed leadership of the oil group, mounting nearly two points, while Royal Dutch advanced one and gains of substantial fractions were recorded by Mexican Petroleum and Pan American. Consolidated and People's Gas shares each climbed a point and were followed into higher ground by Davison, Allied and American Agricultural Chemical. Other individual strong spots included Crucible, American Woolen and Famous Players, each up a point or more.

Other speculative leaders in which a fairly large short interest is supposed to exist, fell into line with the upward movement in Gulf States Steel, the stock extending its gain to nearly five points. Country-wide reports of increased retail business found expression in the demand for merchandising shares, Woolworth climbing 6½ and May Department Stores 2. Some unsettlement took place at midday when Mexican Petroleum was subjected to pressure on rumors of additional oil taxes, that stock dropping 2¾ below Saturday's close. Republic Steel, Rock Island, American Smelting, United Retail Stores and Willys-Overland preferred also yielded to professional selling, the declines ranging from one to two points. Call money opened and renewed at five percent.

Uncovering of a few weak spots by bear traders failed to halt the upward movement. Tobacco Products, Houston Oil, North American and American Telegraph and Cable were pushed up one to three points. Baldwin and Studebaker under pressure, declined a point or more each. The close was steady. Sales 725,000 shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Ill.—Prospects of a peaceful settlement with the Turks led to a moderate setback in wheat prices Monday during early dealings. Sellers were by no means aggressive though, and seemed disposed to await further developments before acting on the basis that likelihood of war had been eliminated altogether. The opening which ranged from ¼ to 1⅛c lower with December $1.04¼ to $1.05 and May $1.08⅜ to $1.09 was followed by slight rally and then by a downturn somewhat below initial figures.

Subsequently further peace talk and an increase of the United States visible supply total had a depressing influence on values. The close was unsettled 1⅜ to 2¼c net lower with December $1.04 to ⅛ and May $1.08 to ⅛.

Large receipts of corn together with talk of diminished danger of damage from frost tended to ease the markets. After opening ¼ to ¾c lower, December 58⅛ to ½c, corn prices recovered a little.

Later the corn market showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure. The close was unsettled at ⅜c net decline to ⅛c advance, December 58⅝c.

Oats started ¼ to ⅜ to ½c lower, December 35⅝c, rallied a trifle and then sagged lower than before.

Provisions were higher.

KICKAPOO VALLEY CALLED WISCONSIN'S ELDORADO

DRIFTLESS AREA PRODUCES FINE CROPS OF FRUIT

Start Made by Frederic Cranefield Fourteen Years Ago Grows to be Big Industry

INDUSTRY YET IN YOUTH; FUTURE PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Whole Section of Southwestern Wisconsin Has Wonderful Fruit Raising Chances

(A Kay Byng Feature.)

In a Prairie du Chien grocery store a few days ago occurred a strange conversation:

Man—Got any good apples this morning?

Grocer—Yes, sir, here's some Wealthy and here's some good California apples they say is the best tasting apple that's been in Chicago this year. I ordered a box especially on their recommendation.

Man—H'm, mind if I sample the two?

Grocer—No, go ahead.

A few moments later the man decided. "I'll take the Wealthies. That California fruit is worthless when it comes to flavor. By the way, what's the difference in price?"

"Why that western stuff is supposed to sell for eight cents a pound and the Wealthy for five, but I'll make them both at five if you want."

"Never mind, I'll take the Wealthy."

I watched the man depart and then asked the grocer, "Where are those Wealthies grown?"

"Gays Mills—up the Kickapoo valley."

Even before he answered I guessed his reply, for in a score of southwestern Wisconsin towns during the last month I have asked the same question only to receive a similar answer, except on two occasions. Once the fruit was grown in Lansing, Iowa, another time at La Crescent, Minn. Nor is it at all unlikely that similar fruit cannot be grown anywhere in southwestern Wisconsin, anywhere within the 13,728 miles of the driftless area, where the grey crags of Wisconsin's ancient mountains jut out into valleys and coulees by the meandering ridges. For while geologists and soil experts once looked upon this region with dismay, and said that were the remainder of Wisconsin as unfortunate as this, the state should have lost in valuation of its soil alone over $30,000,000 dollars, it remained for a Johnny Appleseed to plant the nucleus of a new crop, when he selected a few acres on the hills above Gays Mills to start an experimental orchard.

It was an old German inn-keeper at Lynxville who proposed another idea, "When I came here fifteen years ago they all said I couldn't raise grapes on my hill, but it looked just like the Rhine to me and so I planted an acre. Now you should see them—they are better even than those we raised in the old country. And I don't see why everybody can't do just as well."

Raises Grapes

Is that what this region is to become—a vast land of vineyards planted on the slopes with apple orchards crowning the hill-tops? Over thirteen thousand square miles of fruit country, saved for Wisconsin when the glaciers of forty thousand years ago were diverted north of Devils Lake, Wausau, Eau Claire, and the board recorder set down that this region should become a fruit belt in the twentieth century. It is much the same in soil, climate, nearness to market, and should the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway become a reality, the possibility of shipping Wisconsin apples, Wisconsin raisins, to Liverpool or London will become another reality. What then of inaccessible California, Oregon, Washington—does Wisconsin wait only for promoters to encourage the planting of its future fruit belt?

Cranefield a Pioneer

No, already the seeds are planted, not by Johnny Appleseed, but fourteen years ago by Fred Cranefield, present secretary of the Wisconsin Horticultural society. During a geology trip up the Kickapoo valley he was impressed by the opportunity for fruit-growing in that vicinity, persuaded John Hays to provide a few acres of ground for the experiment and with the aid of such noted horticulturists as Toole of Baraboo, and Coe of Ft. Atkinson planted the first few acres. They chopped the trees and cleared the land to plant the first orchard, and so interested did various parties become that shortly afterward more acres were planted, until in 1914 the present lines of the 900 acre orchard of today were drawn and completed.

Today—come along to Gays Mills or catch a ride with one of the numerous automobiles from Muscoda, Boscobel, Richland Center, Viroqua, Prairie du Chien or some other of the intervening towns. They are all taking the road to the orchards, some out of sheer curiosity, some to purchase fruit, some to spend the time on an afternoon or to show friends the orchard. Take the winding road up the bluff, look down over the white rail fence into the valley, turn another corner—hold your breath and admit that you never expected to see 60,000 apple trees in the heart of Wisconsin.

John Hays, upon whose land the first Kickapoo orchard was planted.

Superintendent Markham of the Gays Mills orchards.

Purple of grapes hanging from the vines, bulging smooth skins of plums, fragrant odor of apples—apples by the basket, by the barrel, by the carload. Such are the first impressions of the Kickapoo orchards which one day may become famous not only throughout America but in Europe as well. All the trees are young, thriving, yet loaded with fruit.

Big Yields

On one patch of fourteen-year-old Greenings, Mr. Markham, manager of the company, estimates a yield of 300 barrels to the acre, on another of McIntosh a similar yield, and even on eight-year-old Wealthy plots he has been harvesting over 150 bushels an acre. The young trees begin bearing early in the Kickapoo, and with the abundance of fruit produced now, imagine the carloads which will be shipped down the Kickapoo valley in another decade. The wildest dream of an horticulturist forbids mention of that prospect, for have not many men insisted that "Wisconsin can not raise apples and never will raise apples," and have not people gone west into irrigated countries for the express purpose of growing apples which they could send their friends back home?

Now the buyers in the markets whisper a word full of meaning to the orchardist, "Flavor—Wisconsin apples have better flavor than anything bought in the west." And the word is passed about quietly and the men of the Kickapoo smile complacently when by a few rapid multiplications they determine the amount which Oregon fruit growers pay for freight every year.

Walk down those rows of trees after you have driven for nearly three miles along the hill roads which wander through the orchards. Over in one corner is a hundred acre patch of Dudley, grown especially for the early market; at another point is one hundred fifty acres of Wealthy, an entire farm, where the bright glossy fruit gleams among the scanty foliage of loaded trees. Farther back you will find another hundred acres of delicious Snow apples and a similar plot of McIntosh, the two most delicious fruits of the middle west. Stoop down beneath one of the trees, pick up a McIntosh and let your teeth sink into the juicy flesh. White and soft it is, but the flavor—you remember the old McIntosh apples you picked in the fall on the home farm, and all your life you have reiterated, "If they could only grow apples like that nowadays." You won't need to say that again after tasting these, you will go down to the retailing station and order a barrel, or two barrels, sent you this winter in time for the holidays, and you will build up a little dream about a fireplace, roasting apples and popping corn which takes you back to the old days of forty years ago.

A ten-year-old investigator beneath the tree took a large bite of one apple she had selected and then applied the only fittingly descriptive word I had heard all day. "Oh boy, oh boy," she said.

Then walk around to the vineyard. What kind do you prefer—red, purple, white or green? Select your choice from among the rows of Delaware, Brighton, Concord, Warden, Moore's Early, or Niagara. Up on the hill you can buy them by the pound or by the bushel, for the yield has not yet become so large but that local sale and distribution by truck to the surrounding towns, more than uses up the crop.

Plums Too

Plums—yes, branches loaded with them and collecting the warm rays of September sunlight on their surfaces. There are only a few trees, fifty or so, in the orchard at present, for they were planted as an experiment. So also were the cherries, another stone fruit, but the sixty acres yielded so well last year that it is proposed to plant yet a larger orchard. Cherries too find their sale in the vicinity, but later on they will be canned or distributed among the cities of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Ask one more question. What of the market?

"Most of our apples today are going north," says Mr. Markham, "north to the Twin cities, to Duluth and Superior, and only two days ago we shipped our first carload of apples to Milwaukee. You see those other cities west of us have no really convenient source of supply and they will take practically our entire output, especially those of Snow apples and McIntosh, which come on the holiday market. Of course, our production is only beginning, but I believe we shall have no competition in the field worthy of mention. Our markets are all close at hand."

Then go down and talk to John Hays, on whose farm the experimental orchard was first planted and in whose care it was for ten years. "We are only beginning to realize what we have done," he says. "And the next few years will begin to show just how large our yields can be. You see, all of the various companies which own orchards up there were organized a few years ago into the Kickapoo Development company which is now doing all the operating of the orchards, from spraying, to sale of fruit and which pays its dividends to the respective stockholders. The direct work is handled through an executive committee, and through our superintendent, Mr. Markham."

Only Starting

"Yes," he continued, "we shall need much more equipment before we are completely under way. We shall want a canning factory to take care of the surplus cherries, and we shall need sorting houses and cider presses for the apple orchards. Many apples are now going to waste which should be made into cider and thus utilized. We have done practically no shipping of apples in boxes, but we are trying that this year."

"You anticipate larger orchards and more acreage in this surrounding region,"

"Why not? Everything is favorable."

But after that I stopped to talk with a man in a restaurant who seemed to know something about the orchards.

"In five years," he said "they'll be grubbing up every tree on the hills."

"Why?"

"Because they can't sell those apples for twenty-five cents a bushel anywhere. Down in Chicago fruit is less than fifty cents a bushel."

"But," interrupted the restaurant keeper, "they sold every bushel of Wealthies they had this year for a dollar a bushel."

"Eh, what's that—well they can't get more'n a hundred bushels of fruit off an acre though. They don't know how to run orchards in this country."

"H'm," again the quick retort. "They're picking three hundred barrels to the acre on McIntosh & Greening, this year."

"You can believe that—I don't." And I saw the black cap and the slouching back of the town loafer leaving the store.

* * * *

Like all other sure-enough propositions, the Kickapoo orchards have their knockers, but it is the same man who ten years from now will say, "If I'd only bought some land and planted an orchard I'd be a rich man today. Guess I'd better go out west and start up."

But let those who are interested, watch this orchard, watch also all of southwestern Wisconsin. On those ridges situated as many of them are from three to five hundred feet above the surrounding valleys, apple trees will be planted; and with the apples, cherries and grapes, and it may be that in her Driftless Area of the southwest, Wisconsin shall have a fruit country second to none in America and shall thereby be thankful once again for the strange freak left by an erratic glacier.

SCRIBES TO BE TEMPTED WITH WONDERFUL APPLES GROWN IN THE VICINITY OF LA CROSSE

Members of the staffs of several of the leading newspapers of the northwest are going to find out what wonderful apples can be grown around La Crosse. Pres. J. J. Felber of the La Crosse Chamber of Commerce has secured the bushel of apples which won first prize in the open class at the Inter-State fair, and is sending samples of them to the editors of the Chicago Tribune, the Minneapolis Tribune, the Milwaukee Journal, the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press and the Milwaukee Sentinel.

Accompanying the apples will be a note stating that they were grown on the farm of Henry Vollenweider of La Crescent, Minn., three miles from La Crosse. The apples are of the Delicious variety, and took first prize at the Inter-State fair in the class styled "Any other variety."

In the opinion of Prof. J. G. Moore, of the horticultural department of the college of agriculture at the University of Wisconsin, the apples shown at the fair here surpassed anything seen at Minneapolis or Milwaukee, and that they were far superior to anything he had seen on a trip through Oregon.

TRIBUNE FORCE ENJOYS GRAPES

The Tribune force was given a delightful treat Friday morning when Carl Helke, well known town of Shelby farmer, brought in a large basket of luscious grapes to be passed around.

The grapes, which were of the Delaware and Concord varieties, were raised in Mr. Helke's vineyard.

SERIOUS OUTBREAK OF HOG CHOLERA IN SOUTHERN COUNTIES

Seventeen New Outbreaks Occur During the Month of August

DISEASE MOST PREVALENT DURING THE AUTUMN DAYS

Vaccination is Cheap and Safe Insurance

Seventeen new hog cholera outbreaks during the month of August, with heavy losses in each case is the disturbing report issued by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture. The disease has been reported from eight counties, as follows:

Grant Co., 4 cases, near Montford, Mineral Point., Platteville.

Rock Co., 3 cases, near Bordhead, Avalon and Milton Junction.

Green Co., 1 case, near Albany.

Milwaukee Co., 1 case, near Wauwatosa.

Fond du Lac Co., 3 cases, near Oakfield and Fond du Lac.

La Crosse Co., 1 case near West Salem.

Polk Co., 3 cases, near New Richmond.

St. Croix Co., 1 case, near Spring Valley.

Past history teaches of hog cholera that outbreaks from the disease are most numerous, and losses most severe during the fall months of Sept. Oct. and November. Farmers are therefore, warned to watch their herds closely for evidence of disease. If some of the animals are not doing well, report the condition at once to the Department of Agriculture, Madison, Wisconsin, and as much assistance as possible will be given you. If you are in infected territory don't wait until the disease gets into the herd—vaccinate at once.

No herd of hogs, no matter how well kept, or how carefully attended, is safe from an attack of hog cholera unless they are immunized. Vaccination properly performed is a cheap and safe form of insurance, but the treatment should be administered while all the animals are in good health. It is a protective not a curative treatment.

MONROE COUNTY WOMEN PLAN BIG GET-TO-GETHER

Monday, October 16th, will probably be the date for a county get-together of farm and city women in Sparta. Miss Meloche, the clothing specialist at Madison, has been conducting several groups of classes in clothing during the last week.

These groups consist of ten women each and include four lessons. They make, first, the study of materials, second, making of a dress form, third, fitting of patterns, and fourth, how to use a pattern.

A great deal of interest has been manifested by the women in these courses and in order to give all women in the county an opportunity to get better acquainted with this type of work, Miss Meloche and Mrs. Nellie Kedzie Jones, with whom many Monroe county women are acquainted, will conduct a one-day course at Sparta.

The date has not been definitely decided but this tentative date of October 16th should be kept in mind and the papers watched for further announcements.

SALE WEDNESDAY

TOMAH, Wis.—A big dispersal sale of the Valley farms Holstein herds will be held at the Monroe county fair grounds here on Wednesday under the direction of County Agent E. L. Liddle, Dell Chapman, farm manager, and George P. Stevens, one of the owners. The cattle will be housed in the big stock barns, in front of which will be erected a large tent for the sale proper. It will be electrically lighted and in case of bad weather, the sides will be rolled down for the comfort of visitors.

MONROE COUNTY SHOWS INTEREST IN DAIRY SHOW

TOMAH, Wis.—J. C. Liddle, Monroe county's agricultural agent, is stirring up an unprecedented interest among the farmers of the county in the matter of exhibiting pure-bred stock at the national dairy show. Plans have been made whereby fifteen of the county's choicest dairy animals will make the trip to St. Paul in October. Breeders who are to consign cattle at the sale to be staged by Wisconsin at the dairy show include Herman Hubert of Wilton, William Brandeau of Wilton, Clarence Heath of Ontario, Brandeau Brothers and Frank Mitchell of Wilton. The above data shows that the keenest interest centers about Wilton, a small town in eastern Monroe county, seven miles southwest of Tomah.

WISCONSIN POTATOES BRING BETTER PRICE THAN GOPHER TUBERS

MADISON, Wis.—Potatoes from Wisconsin are selling at a higher price than those shipped from Minnesota due to grading and standardization, the state department of markets says. The department quotes a Minnesota statement showing that the Badger product was selling for as much as 50 cents more than that of Minnesota during the past month.

Where Wisconsin growers have been receiving as high as $1.50 for their stock Minnesota has been receiving $1, according to the statement.

Wisconsin Maintains the Lead in Eradication of Bovine Diseases

On Sept. 1, Wisconsin still maintained its lead in the nation-wide war on bovine tuberculosis. Iron, Douglas and Chippewa counties have been added to the list of counties having all its cattle tested for tuberculosis. In all, Wisconsin now has seven counties with tuberculin tested cattle, four in which work is progressing, two others that have petitioned the department of agriculture for county-wide tests, and a dozen or more which are securing signers for such tests.

Wisconsin not only leads the nation in the greatest number of tested areas, but also in the number of accredited herds. There were tested under the accredited herd plan 502 herds containing 11,476 cattle; 416 animals reacted to the tuberculin test; 42 herds were tested for reaccreditation by the local accredited veterinarians containing 1,155 cattle. At the end of this month there were 5,800 herds containing 134,141 cattle under supervision; 3,011 herds containing 52,590 cattle had passed the first negative test toward accreditation and there were 1,829 herds containing 41,151 cattle certified to as fully accredited.

"DIRTY PIG" IS A CLEAN ANIMAL IF GIVEN CHANCE

Contrary to popular opinion, the hog is naturally a clean animal. In far too many cases he does not have the chance to keep himself clean, but when given a chance he is quick to avail himself of the opportunity. Light, cleanliness, and ventilation will be found to pay just as big profits in swine production as in any other branch of the live stock business.

Warm, dry, well-ventilated hog houses are essential for the successful raising of swine. While there are labor-saving advantages in the centralized house, colony houses are cheap and nearly as good. They have the added advantage of facilitating the frequent change of lots and pastures. Worms are spread from hog to hog through the manure and dirty pools of hog lot and pasture, and even on the grass itself after a given lot had been in continued use. Therefore, it is advisable to make frequent changes of lots and pastures if one wishes to prevent swine from becoming infected with worms, lice, and diseases. By the use of colony houses at farrowing time, and for a few weeks thereafter, the litters may be kept separate. This prevents robbing and fighting among the little fellows, and fewer runts are produced.

The floors and bedding must be kept dry and clean and should be disinfected occasionally. Lice are prevented by frequent dipping. The mixtures recommended to prevent worms are of some value, but too much should not be expected from them, as proper feed in sufficient quantities at regular intervals is what makes pigs grow and thrive. Vaccination will prevent hog cholera. By vaccinating each succeeding crop of pigs, the herd may be kept permanently immune.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THE BOYS and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow. There is nothing remarkable about that statement. It is a natural law, and it is something over which we have no control. What we can do, however, is to determine what sort of men and women we will have in the tomorrow by the interest, or lack of interest that we take in the boys and girls of today.

That the people of the La Crosse district are beginning to realize the increasing importance of training the young people is evident from the great increase in the ranks of the Boys' and Girls' clubs at the Interstate fair which was held last week. Club work in the Boys' and Girls' department increased more than fifty per cent in the last year. This splendid development was made possible partly by the interest and spirit of friendly rivalry that has been fostered among boys and girls and partly by the generosity of several La Crosse business men who donated money toward the premiums awarded prize winners in this department.

The exhibits shown by the boys and girls, including grain, vegetables and livestock, were of a quality that many an older person would be proud to own. This in itself is evidence of considerable interest on the part of the young people in the life and activities of the farm.

We are told that the trend of population is city-ward, and that soon not enough will be left on the land to keep the nation supplied with food. One of the best ways to prevent the young people from leaving the farm is to make farm life interesting and wholesome. Boys' and Girls' club work is doing that.

The Boys' and Girls' clubs have a good start. Let's keep them going!

FARMERS BEGIN TO THINK OF BUYING LIME FERTILIZER

Many Monroe County Farmers Will Buy Limestone this Fall

Monroe county farmers' attention is again being turned to the buying of lime for field purposes. Inquiries are already being received by the county agricultural agent asking where lime can be obtained and at what prices. The prospects are that lime is going to be materially cheaper this year than it was last.

At the present time the La Crosse Limestone company is offering agricultural limestone testing 88 per cent. This limestone has been examined by representatives of the soils department of the agricultural college and they say it is a good buy.

The Waukesha Limestone company, and the Waukesha Lime and Stone company, both of Waukesha and the Rockfield Products company, Rockfield, Wisconsin, are other quarries where agricultural lime can be obtained. Those who are desirous of getting lime this fall can get in touch with either or any of these concerns.

As a matter of interest to Monroe county farmers, the county agent reports that farmers who have used lime for a number of years like to put it on the corn land the year previous to seeding down. This gives the lime an opportunity to get thoroughly worked into the soil and is readily available for the clover or alfalfa when it is seeded.

The majority of farmers who bought lime last year and piled it up outside say that they will not do so again. By getting wet it becomes hard to distribute over the fields uniformly. Farmers, then, who are going to buy lime for the first time can profit by the experience of others and make arrangements to haul their lime this fall when the roads are good or get it in the winter and put it under cover to keep it dry.

BARLEY CROP IS LARGE

Wisconsin still produces nearly a half million acres of barley and crop forecasters have estimated this year's product in excess of 14,000,000 bushels.

FARM EXHIBITS BY COMMUNITY IDEA SPREADS RAPIDLY

Scores of Wisconsin Communities Make Local and County Fairs Serve Purpose

BIG PURPOSE TO FOSTER SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION

Teamwork is What Brings Good Results

MADISON.—Scores of Wisconsin communities are making local and county fairs serve a big purpose in advancing the cause of a better and bigger agriculture.

"The church, the school, the town hall, the community center, the small town or village—each one of these institutions forms a nucleus around which can be built a community fair."

Community Fair Important

"School teachers, agricultural agents, leading farmers, rural ministers are all agents for the promotion of good fellowship and better agriculture in the country. Community fairs offer one of the best outlets for this kind of development. It is only when everybody works and plays together that the best results can be brought about. This is just as true of country folk as it is of city people. The road to better agriculture lies locked up in the hearts and minds of human beings.

"The community fair is the key to the locked gate. A group of farmers and their families assembled for a festival day in the fall of the year will develop a spirit of co-operation that can work wonders for agriculture. Friendly competition in exhibits of farm produce stimulates the entrants to improved farm practices. Group games call forth the spirit of team play so essential to progress in any line. The meeting and mingling of new neighbors is another one of the joys which community fairs foster."

Teamwork Brings Results

A typical community fair was that held in Kenosha county at Wilmot. The county agent and the high school principal here decided to divide the county into two divisions, a fair to be held in west Kenosha county at Wilmot and the other fair in east Kenosha county.

With the high school as the fair grounds and the principal and school children as the driving forces a big fair was put on for west Kenosha county. More than 3,000 people from the surrounding country side were in attendance. The fair was in progress one day and a night.

Exhibits were of the highest order. Grains, poultry, vegetables, and stock were pronounced by many the equal of similar exhibits at the state's best county fairs. The fancy work exhibits were said to have surpassed the exhibits at the state fair.

The money was used for community improvements. Water works in the high school took care of part of the profits. A gymnasium will probably follow soon. A community shed for housing of bicycles, automobiles, horses and vehicles of travel to and from high school was built by the high school students with some of the fair money.

SMALL GRAINS IN IOWA ARE BEST ON RECORD IN STATE

CRESCO, Ia. — (Special) — The small grain crop of Iowa is the best quantity and quality on record for the state, according to authentic information, the wheat yield being from thirty-five to fifty bushels per acre and grading either No. 1 or 2 for the greater part. Oats are short, having but little straw but with large hard kernels and weighs out between twenty-eight to thirty-four pounds per bushel which is about six pounds better than last year when twenty-eight pounds was considered good. A much smaller acreage of corn was planted this year than last, the ground being used for winter wheat. Corn is maturing very satisfactorily and it is believed that most of it will be out of danger from early frosts.

BUTTER MAKER RESIGNS POST

RUSHFORD, Minn.—(Special)—After twenty-one years' residence in this city, during which time he has been buttermaker for the Rushford creamery, Joseph Plonty has resigned the position, the resignation to take effect October 1st. His successor has not yet been named.

PICRIC ACID IN CARLOADS

Carloads of picric acid are being shipped to Wisconsin from Fort Wingate Ariz. This explosive, salvaged from the war, is used in clearing land. It, of course, is most used in the northern portion of the state. The state's supply was secured through the efforts of the land clearing division of the University of Wisconsin.
